Greece Orders All Vessels to Remain in Port

Tension Growing in Relations With Italy
After Cruiser Is Sunk

Athens —(AP)—The Greek government, acting after the sinking of the 2,115-ton Greek cruiser Helle by an unidentified submarine was announced, issued an order tonight forbidding all Greek ships to leave port.

The order was taken by foreign observers as an indication of the seriousness with which the government views the tension of its relations with Italy.

Official quarters declined comment, but indicated they saw in the attack on the Helle an effort to force Greece into some act which would change her stated position of neutrality.

All telephonic communication with Rome was severed today shortly after the government announced the sinking of Helle by an unidentified submarine.

The Helle, an American-built vessel, was torpedoed in Tinos island harbor in the Aegean sea. One petty officer was lost and 29 crew members were injured.

Leaders Confer
Chiefs of the army, navy and air force were summoned after the sinking was announced for a conference with Premier General John Metaxas.

The official Greek version of the sinking said three torpedoes were fired without warning. One hit the cruiser and the others hit the quay, injuring some religious pilgrims and travelers.

The cruiser's nationality was plainly marked, an official announcement said, and a mistake in identity would have been virtually impossible.

The torpedoing occurred as Italian and Greek relations became increasingly tense because of the recent Italian press campaign charging Greece was violating her neutrality by being too friendly with Britain.

Premier Metaxas, who had met for many hours with General Papagos, chief of the army staff, and cabinet members in an unprecedented long night discussion on Italian-Greek tension, hurriedly summoned a press conference for reports of the sinking.

Sisters Held In Shooting

Accused of Disguising
Selves as Men in Fake
Pennsylvania Holdup

Waynesburg, Pa. —(AP)—Deputy Sheriff Jack Orndoff said today two sisters admitted they had disguised themselves as men to execute a fake holdup in which Mrs. Ada Hubbard, 44, was shot five times last Tuesday.

Orndoff identified the sisters as Mrs. Otis Cumberledge, 36, a widow and the mother of a son, and Mrs. Elizabeth Pettit, 25.

The deputy sheriff, who brought charges of aggravated assault and battery with intent to kill against both women, charged Mrs. Pettit had done the shooting. The condition of Mrs. Hubbard, critical yesterday, was reported "fair" today.

All five shots entered the abdomen. She was shot as she, her husband and 12-year-old son arrived at their home at Pine Bank. Her 49-year-old husband, an oil field worker, who reported the shooting, was taken into custody for questioning last night.

Orndoff said additional charges would be brought but added: "I don't care to discuss the motive back of all this now. That will be cleared up when the other charges are brought."

Thousands of Chinese Are Reported Drowned

Shanghai —(AP)—Domel (Japanese news agency) reported today that several thousand Chinese had been drowned in floods of the Yellow river in the region of Kaifeng, Honan province, North China.

The agency reported that the river, whose floods have been among the most destructive in history, had broken through its banks at several places along the Lunghai railway.

Wallace Submits Resignation From Roosevelt Cabinet

Washington —(AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, The Democratic vice presidential nominee, handed President Roosevelt his letter of resignation from the cabinet today.

The secretary said the letter would be made public by the president later.

Wallace, who has held the agriculture post throughout the Roosevelt administration, reported that he and the president had discussed a successor to the cabinet post but that there was nothing he could say about that matter.

He probably will leave Aug. 27 for Des Moines, Iowa, he said, for the formal ceremonies notifying him of his nomination as Mr. Roosevelt's running mate.

Californian Urges Road Plan to Give Conscripts Jobs as Training Ends

Leaders Say Compromise May
Defer Forced Army Service

Washington —(AP)—Senator Downey (D-Calif.) proposed today that the Burke-Wadsworth compulsory military service bill include provision for construction of a national system of superhighways to furnish jobs for conscripts completing army training.

Such an undertaking, Downey told the senate, would "eliminate" unemployment and would solve one of the chief problems likely to follow conscription.

Most conscripts would be taken from the ranks of the unemployed, the Californian argued. He said they should not be turned out of training camps without jobs.

Downey, opening the fifth day of senate debate on the legislation, told reporters he planned to support a compromise measure by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.), which would delay conscription until Jan. 1 at least.

Administration strategists privately acknowledged today that there was a good chance the senate might reject immediate conscription in favor of a compromise program deferring the start of compulsory service until January.

These leaders said their drive for enactment of the Burke-Wadsworth bill had run into difficulties because of the statement by Brigadier General William E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff, that the army would be unable to absorb a full quota of conscripts before December.

This army statement, they said, had furnished ammunition to backers of the compromise measure offered by Senator Maloney (D-Conn.) who would register all men between 21 and 31 immediately but postpone the calling of conscripts until 1941.

Compromise Provision
Unless senate sentiment shifts before a vote is reached on the Maloney compromise next week, leaders reported after a checkup, the measure was apt to win approval.

It was pointed out that the compromise, in providing for inauguration of conscription next January, makes the start contingent on the army's failure to obtain enough men by voluntary enlistment by that date.

Troopers at Camp McCoy Get Set for 'Battle of Wisconsin'

Camp McCoy, Wis. —(AP)—The booming of artillery fired punctuated the rattle of rifles and machine guns today as national guard units advanced their field training in preparation for the "battle of Wisconsin," which will conclude the three-week maneuvers of the Second Army.

The 57th Field Artillery brigade, made up of Michigan and Wisconsin units and commanded by Colonel Joseph H. Lewis, took over the ranges this morning. They fired the snappy 75s and the heavier, long distance 155 millimeter guns. There were surprise targets, movements.

Plans New Troop
Infantry units of all guard divisions engaged in tactical training of battalions and smaller units.

Plans for a new reconnaissance troop to further the efficiency of the army's streamlined Fifth division were taking shape today at the Second Army maneuvers.

Brigadier General Lloyd R. Fredendall, commander, told more than 2,000 officers who watched the division turn back an "enemy force" yesterday that the new unit would consist of 105 enlisted men and five officers.

Equipment will include 20 scout cars armed with heavy and light machine guns and 12 motorcycles.

Woman Killed in Mexican Gunfire

Mexico City —(AP)—A woman was killed and seven persons were injured last night in a burst of gunfire as congressional candidates of opposing factions prepared for preliminary sessions late today to organize for opening of congress Sept. 1.

The shooting came as one of dozens of trucks bearing peasants to the capital to protect backers of General Manuel Avila Camacho, administration presidential candidate, passed a group of citizens in an outlying section of Mexico City.

As the group shouted "Viva Almazan" for General Juan Almazan, independent presidential candidate, pistols blazed.

Blind Baby, Victim
Of Glioma, Succumbs
Chicago —(AP)—Baby Helaine Colan, for whom a "jury" of physicians and clergymen decreed an operation at the risk of total blindness rather than a "mercy death," died yesterday.

The child, two years and four months old, succumbed to glioma, a cancerous growth that brought complete blindness recently.

When the baby was two months old the disease had blinded her left eye and impaired the vision of the other. Physicians said an operation might save her life but that she probably would be blind.

Her parents, Herman and Estelle Colan, were unable to decide between an operation and a "mercy death." Advice came from all parts of the nation. On the recommendation of the jury, physicians removed the left eye and part of the optic nerve in a vain effort to check spread of the malady.

Agree on Division
Of Shanghai Sector
Shanghai —(AP)—An agreement has been reached dividing control of the British defense sector of Shanghai's International Settlement between American and Japanese forces, it was reported reliably today.

The future of the British sector following removal of British troops from Shanghai and North China was discussed by defense commanders in a four-hour meeting.

Official quarters refused to confirm or deny the reports of an agreement, saying an official statement would be issued at 9 a. m. tomorrow (7 o'clock p. m., C.S.T., Thursday).

According to the reports, the British sector would be split up as follows:

The 4th U. S. Marines under Colonel Dewitt Peck will take over the central district of the International Settlement, and the Japanese will take over West Hongkew and the extra settlement western district, where dual control already existed.

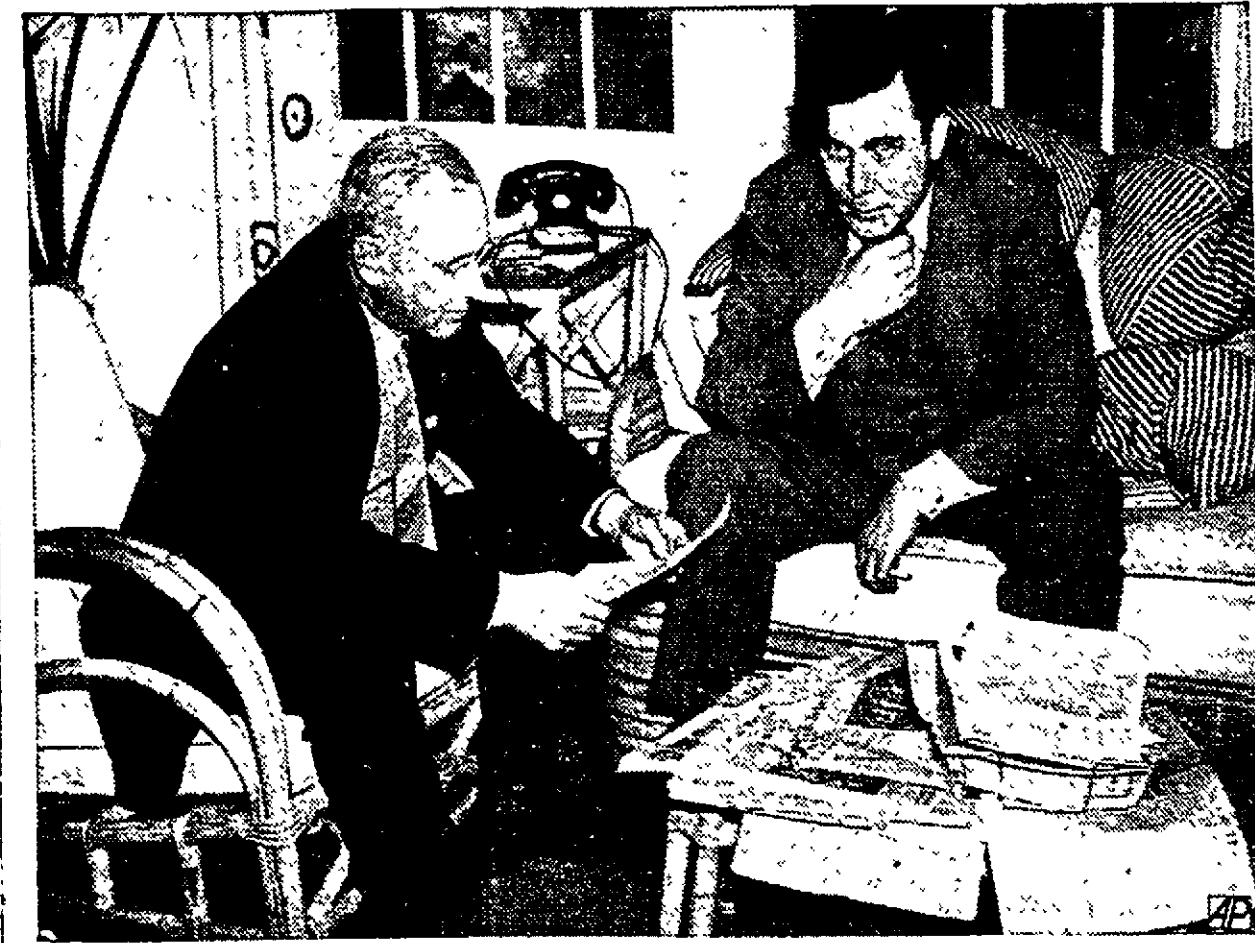

Willkie Speech Expected to Give
Views on Forced Army Training

Republican Nominee
Will Fly to Indiana
For Acceptance Talk
Colorado Springs, Colo. —(AP)—Wendell L. Willkie will fly late today to Indiana where, in his acceptance address Saturday, he is expected to disclose for the first time his views on military conscription.

The Republican nominee arranged to address a crowd at the Kansas City airport (about 4:35 p. m., central standard time) during a brief stop. His chartered plane was scheduled to arrive in Indianapolis at about 8 o'clock p. m. (central standard time) tonight, and he then will motor to Rushville, Ind., the home town of Mrs. Willkie.

The acceptance address which Willkie will deliver Saturday at Elwood, Ind., his own home town, probably will cover the general

Escaped Youth Wounded After He Steals Auto

Fled From Reformatory
Farm; Shot as Wausau
Officers Seek Arrest

Wausau —(AP)—Jack Tomlinson, 19, who fled from the state reformatory two days before his release was ordered, was shot and wounded as he ran from a stolen car when county officers attempted to arrest him yesterday.

Four shotgun pellets struck the youth in the back. The wounds were not serious, but Tomlinson was taken to Memorial hospital.

Sheriff Ralph Gunzel, informed that two automobiles had been stolen here and that Tomlinson was visiting the Rib Mountain CCC camp in one of them, set out for the camp with Traffic Officer Frank Nienow.

Tomlinson leaped from the car, stolen from Mrs. Ruth Evans, Wausau, and ran toward a clump of trees when he saw the officers. Nienow called upon Tomlinson to halt, then fired four shells from his shot gun, the fourth striking the boy in the back.

At Green Bay, E. H. Eklund, reformatory superintendent, said that Tomlinson had escaped from the reformatory farm while working with a threshing crew last Monday. Tomlinson told a friend at the CCC camp that he made his getaway after hiding in a manhole. He then stole a bicycle and boarded a freight train for Wausau, Tomlinson said.

Luxembourg Put Into Customs Area

Berlin —(AP)—The German wireless announced today that the little duchy of Luxembourg, overrun by German troops May 10 in the Low Countries offensive, is now included within the German customs frontier.

Belgian customs officials withdrew this morning, the broadcast said.

Gustav Simon, head of the Nazi civil administration in Luxembourg, yesterday ordered references to the grand duchy of Luxembourg and the country of Luxembourg left out of future official correspondence and said the Luxembourg constitution was no longer valid.

Refuse to Restrict
Use of Guardsmen

Washington —(AP)—The house rejected today a proposal to restrict the use of national guardsmen and army reserves who soon may be called to active service.

By a teller vote of 210 to 110, the members defeated an amendment offered to pending army reserve legislation by Representative Miller (R-Conn.) to substitute this restriction for a provision allowing service anywhere in the western hemisphere, American territories and possessions.

That senate-approved legislation would give President Roosevelt authority to order the guardsmen and reserves into active service for one year.

Fight Over Bequest
Settled at Racine

Racine —(AP)—County Judge J. Alan Simpson ruled today that the $200,000 bequest of Arabella R. Horlick Sidley, must be placed in the residue of the later's estate.

In his order, the court held that an estate can receive a bequest under a will.

Mrs. Horlick, widow of William Horlick, founder of the malted milk fortune, died July 9, 1938, three days after the demise of her daughter. Her will made a specific bequest of $200,000 to Mrs. Sidley.

Hollywood Celebrities Deny Link With Reds

Los Angeles —(AP)—In terms of resentment and disgust, Hollywood movie personalities deny they are members of the Communist party or financial supporters thereof as charged in a transcript of county grand jury testimony.

The testimony was that of John Lewis Leech of Portland, Ore., former Los Angeles house painter, Communist organizer and relief client.

Of the many Hollywoodites Leech named, immediate denials came from the following who could be reached, or their spokesmen: Fredric March, Francis Lederer, Jean Muir, Humphrey Bogart, Lionel Stander, James Cagney and Writer Sam Ornitz.

Some of those accused deprecatingly mentioned District Attorney Burton Fitts' current campaign for reelection.

Leech testified in an inquiry that resulted in murder indictments last week against five men accused of complicity in a waterfront killing five years ago during a reported union dispute.

Called Leech "Liar"
Actor March last night said that so far as he was concerned "Leech is an unmitigated liar" and that he would like to meet Leech "face to face and call him a liar."

Writer Ornitz said "I have been consistently attacking District Attorney Burton Fitts on the basis that he is a bad influence for the community, for the home, and in general."

"It is sad," Ornitz continued, "that Mr. Fitts elected to prey upon and slander innocent people just before the primary election because they oppose him."

Actor Stander said the inquiry is "just campaign material for Mr. Fitts, who is using big Hollywood names for his own benefit."

Bogart declared he had never contributed money to a "political organization of any form" and said "I dare the men who are attempting this investigation to call me to the stand."

Others named by Leech included Director Herbert Biberman, Director Frank Tuttle and his wife, Tanayia; Producer Frank Davis, Playwright and Scenarist Clifford Odets, Actor Francis Tone, Director Gregory La Cava, Writer Frank Scully, Scenarist Lester Cole and Buddy Schulberg, son of Producer B. F. Schulberg.

Britons Rush to Shelter; Anti-Aircraft Guns Roar

London —(AP)—German bombers attacked the famous Croydon airport, 10½ miles south of London, today.

Anti-aircraft guns thundered at the raiders and British fighters swarmed to attack them as the war moved a step closer to the heart of the empire.

Mothers and fathers rushed into the streets of the London-suburb and dragged their children to shelter as the thunder and roar of the planes and the exploding bombs came from the direction of the airdrome.

Plumes of smoke rose from the field, one of Europe's most famous airports.

The heaviest bombers of the German reich swept 15,000 feet high and in swarms hundreds strong into the heart of England late today, pounding at the roots of Britain's air and military power from the northern Tyneside to the southern Downs.

Guns and planes took a mounting toll of the invaders, reckless in their strength.

(German bulletins said the invading bombers had penetrated even to the Tilbury docks, teeming industrial beehive just down the Thames from London—15 miles from the city itself.)

Germans Attack Over Wide Area

Bomb Coastal, Inland
Regions; Armaments
Works are Targets

Berlin —(AP)—German planes were reported over London tonight in a surge that carried them past the thickly netted defense of coast and tidal docks, up the Thames estuary to the very citadel of Britain's power.

DNE, the official German news agency, reporting a great onslaught against all Britain's vital centers, as well as her coasts from northeast to southwest, said the German planes reached London despite intense anti-aircraft fire.

Berlin —(AP)—German warplanes today attacked coastal and inland Britain from Scotland to the southeast, with a "hail of bombs" reported rained on the Vickers Armstrong armament works at Hebburn and the port of Newcastle.

DNE, the German official news agency, also reported the bombing of objectives in the Northumberland district, England's northernmost county; Aberdeen, in northeastern Scotland; Dover, the closest British port to France; and a convoy off Peterhead, just north of Newcastle.

Huge Dornier flying boats were used, said DNE, without the loss of a single aircraft.

The news agency said big fires and explosions were set off in the Northumberland raid.

In the attacks on Dover, the Germans reported smashing through curtains of anti-aircraft fire to make successful attacks on that port, only 22 miles across the channel from Calais, France, and vital air bases nearby.

Eleven British planes were shot down in a furious battle over the Hawkinge airport, 10 miles west of Dover, DNE, the official German news agency, reported. German Messerschmitts, protecting the

Brown County Road Commissioner Hurt

Green Bay —(AP)—George J. Cormier, 62, a Brown county highway commissioner for the last 26 years, was seriously injured late yesterday in an automobile collision near Luck.

Cormier was on the way to a county road construction job to make an inspection when his car and a large milk tank truck met at an intersection.

Cormier was brought to St. Vincent's hospital in Green Bay. He still was unconscious this morning. He suffered several fractured ribs, and possible internal injuries.

Defense Work Lifts
Federal Employment
Past Million Mark

Washington —(AP)—The civil service commission reported today that the expanding defense program had pushed federal employment above the million mark for the first time.

The number of workers in the executive branch of the government in June was 1,011,066, a jump of 33,076 or 3.4 per cent from May.

This compared with the World War peak of 917,760 on Nov. 11, 1918, and the previous peacetime record of 887,857 reached last Dec. 31.

Commenting that the defense program "has resulted in especially significant employment during the past year," the commission said that between June, 1939, and June, 1940, the war and navy departments, the Panama canal authority and the civil aeronautics authority had added 70,514 employees, which was 82 per cent of the total gain of 85,281 for the period.

Despite the increase in jobholders, the federal payroll declined in June to $149,076,867, which was $128,828 below May.

Says Workers Fired
Under Hatch Act Can
Accept New U. S. Jobs

Washington —(AP)—R. N. Elliott, the acting comptroller general, said in a formal opinion today that while the Hatch politics act required the dismissal of federal employees for various political activities it "apparently would not prohibit" the re-employment of those discharged in other positions.

In an opinion asked by the WPA, Elliott said that after the act provides for dismissal it prohibits rehiring of the person dismissed in "such office."

Thus, the acting comptroller general wrote, the law "apparently would not prohibit his (a dismissed person's) employment in some other position or office."

Observers See British Turn Back Nazi Planes

Raiders Come in Drones, Lock Horns
With R.A.F. in Spectacular Fights

BY ROBERT E. BUNNELLE

On the Southeast Coast of England—Germany sent uncounted hundreds of bombing and fighting planes over the coastline of Britain today, seeking out military objectives in the heart of the country.

The armada which swarmed over southeastern England during the day was estimated at 500 planes and covered a strip approximately 30 miles wide, but reports indicated that other waves of almost equal strength were being thrown across the coast all the way from the Thames estuary to Land's End in the west.

The raiders apparently came in several flights, west of this coast town. I saw a score of them in a dog fight with British planes. They circled and dived and wheeled with roar of engines and cannon and the rattle of machine guns. Behind the town, another fight was going on.

Out of this battle a plane suddenly fell. A minute later I saw a parachute billow out and drift slowly seaward.

Earlier in the morning, German fighting planes tested the strength of British fighter patrols—then turned back across the channel.

Dogfight in Air

Thirty minutes later a new wave, flying at about 10,000 feet, engaged a patrol of R. A. F. Hurricanes in a spectacular dogfight high over where I stood.

I saw three planes crash. One was a Messerschmitt 109. Three pilots bailed out.

While this dogfight was raging, five waves of Nazi bombers began swarming across the coast, headed east, at intervals of two minutes.

An Associated Press correspondent at a town southwest of here telephoned this account of a fight there:

About 30 planes came over and bumped into a strong force of R. A. F. Spitfires and Hurricanes.

"Planes were falling out of the sky. Some went down in flames. Machine gun bullets splattered around us during a battle which lasted more than half an hour."

"The Germans lost at least five bombers. (These may have been some of the planes I saw falling to the west.)"

"British anti-aircraft gunners held their fire until the Nazi raiders were dead in range—and then let go. The din was tremendous."

"The first wave made for an airport and the second for another. Many bombers were dropped, but some of the raiders never reached their objectives and fled to sea with their bombs still in their racks."

Plan to Give Play At Annual Meeting Of Church Women

Royalton—In the Royalton Ladies Aid society of the Congregational church parts have been assigned and work will soon begin on a short playlet, "Minister's Sons and Daughters," which is expected to be presented at the annual convention of the Waupaca County Federation of Church Women. The eighth annual convention of that federation will be held at Manawa, early this fall. The women of the Methodist church of that place will be the hostesses.

Officers for 1940 are: President, Mrs. Arthur W. Ritchie, Royalton; vice president Mrs. Emory Rogers, Marion; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Edwin Richter, Manawa; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Francis Dean, Royalton.

At the convention of 1939 which was held in the Baptist church at Waupaca, more than 125 delegates were in attendance. The first gathering of the women of the churches of Waupaca county was held in the Royalton Congregational church on Oct. 14, 1933, with more than 100 present. At that meeting the initial steps were taken to form a federation.

Other churches at which the convention has been held in the ensuing years have been Methodist church, Marion; Methodist church, Clintonville; Presbyterian church, Weyauwega; Methodist church, New London; Congregational church, Clintonville; and Baptist church, Waupaca.

Government to Control French Working Hours

War Tax Is Removed, But Overtime to be Paid at Regular Rate

Vichy, France—(AP)—The French government stepped in to regulate working hours in private industry today as one of the major problems affecting rapid readjustment of France's social and economic life.

Departmental prefects were given authority to fix maximum working hours for each industry and profession in their territory in accordance with conditions in that particular region.

While a national wartime tax of 40 per cent of workers' overtime pay was removed, all overtime, which is not permitted to exceed 75 hours yearly, now will be paid at the same rate as ordinary hours.

Employees will be required to contribute an amount equal to 20 per cent of overtime pay to a workers' benefit fund.

A national maximum of 48 ordinary work hours a week, or nine a day, was fixed by a decree published in the official journal.

At the same time the government announced it would go ahead at once with a nationwide program of electrifying the railways and repairing war damages, thus giving jobs to many thousands of unemployed. The government also will make loans to private industry to get it back on its feet.

It was announced German authorities are studying a proposal for the release of war prisoners urgently needed in Nazi-occupied France for industrial and public service jobs.

Iola, Wis.—(AP)—Oscar Wogland, 61, Iola farmer, was killed by a bolt of lightning yesterday, as he sought shelter under a tree during a storm.

Milwaukee—(AP)—Fred Cook, 55, a mason, was killed yesterday when he lost his balance and fell three stories while repairing a roof.

Boundary Line Is Rendezvous For Man, Wife; Guards Watch

Grand Portage, Minn.—(AP)—At the Pigeon river customs station on the Minnesota-Canada line a Finnish woman, barred by immigration laws from entering Canada, met her husband, who cannot enter the United States.

There on a bench on the bridge over the Pigeon river marks the boundary. Mr. and Mrs. Waite Hokkanen sat Tuesday night and talked while custom officials from Canada and the United States watched.

Their meeting was the second since Mrs. Hokkanen left Finland during the war with Russia and came to the United States last December.

For nine months she has lived with friends at Negaunee, Mich., hoping that soon she would be able to join her husband who lives in Port Arthur, Ont.

But Canadian immigration laws bar her from entering the dominion because aliens can enter the country only from the land of their birth.

Hokkanen came over to Canada 13 years ago but lacked a passport and was refused entry into the United States.

They have been married 15 years and have a 13 year old son in Finland.

Shortly after midnight they parted. Mrs. Hokkanen to go back to Michigan and her husband to Port Arthur.

No Black Marks Are Chalked Up Against Cudahy

U. S. Ambassador Says He Wasn't Rebuked, Not Asked to Resign

Washington—(AP)—John Cudahy, Ambassador to Belgium, has been told by President Roosevelt that there was no intention to reprimand him for his recent statements in London on conditions in German-occupied Belgium.

After a talk with the president yesterday, Cudahy said he had been authorized to say that he received "no rebuke and none was intended."

He added that there was "no question of my resigning" from the diplomatic service.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state, who said last week that Cudahy had violated "standing instructions" of the state department in permitting the London interview, announced after the ambassador had reported to him that the incident was closed and that no rebuke had been administered.

Welles said Cudahy told him that some press accounts of his London interview had misquoted him in many important particulars.

In the Associated Press report of his interview in London, which Cudahy described as a "fair statement," he was quoted as saying Belgium faced a condition "close to famine" by mid September unless food supplies reached there from the United States.

Michigan Aviator Is Killed in Army Plane

Mitchell Field notified Thompson's mother, Mrs. F. M. Thompson, of Muskegon Heights.

Fears Conscription Is Step to Dictatorship

Kendall, Wis.—(AP)—Conscription of a large standing army may "easily lead to dictatorship," Alvin E. O'Konsky, candidate for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor, said in an address here last night.

"An army of 1,000,000 men in uniform could easily be used by the president to set up any form of government he pleased. At the earliest convenience or emergency he, no doubt, would declare martial law which in this country really means dictatorship," O'Konsky said.

Weather Too Rough for German Raiders but British Keep Going

Sky clouding waves of Nazi warplanes, estimated at upward of 1,000 with a single armada flying in a 30 mile wide formation stormed the British Isles today in a maelstrom of fierce, new raids.

It was apparently the biggest mass onslaught since Hitler turned on the full violence of his aerial might a week ago today.

The British government said 55 Nazi raiders were destroyed up to 5 o'clock this afternoon (10 a. m. C. S. T.) Loss of seven British fighter planes was acknowledged.

Droning over one area of the southeast coast came groups estimated to total 500 planes. Other waves of almost equal strength were reported striking up and down the coast from the Thames estuary to Land's End.

It was believed possible that the terrific assault signalled the opening gun of the long threatened attempt to invade England.

Today, according to London sources, was "der tag" set by Hitler for the conquest of England.

The Nazi raiders struck at the great trans-Atlantic shipping port of Southampton, Newcastle, Aberdeen, Scotland, the huge Vickers Armstrong armament works at Hebburn, the Hawking airport 10 miles west of Dover and other vital military centers.

The users of the huge Dornier bombers indicated that the Germans were now either going "all out" to make good their threat of blasting England to ruins, or that they were forced to draw on their reserves as a result of R.A.F. raids last night on Nazi bases along the channel.

Berlin dispatches said the droves of swastika-marked raiders smashed through "curtain" of steel thrown up by British anti-aircraft guns at Dover—the channel "gateway" for a possible invasion attempt—and sped on inland to bomb other objectives.

Squall clouds rose perceptibly in southeast Europe, meanwhile, as the Greek government announced the 2,115 ton Greek light cruiser Helle was torpedoed and sunk by an unidentified submarine.

The sinking came amid Italian newspaper threats of an attack on Greece from Italian-controlled Albania, following growing tension between Italy and pro-British Greece.

Nazis blamed poor flying conditions for the overnight hiatus in raids after four straight days of aerial blitzkrieg against England.

But British Raf bombers took to the skies in a smashing night counter-punch, blasting Nazi air and invasion bases from Calais to Le Havre along a 100-mile front in German-occupied France.

British home defense units searched for possible Nazi parachutists after some 60 German marked parachutes were found.

There was no sign of any Germans, however, and some British

Maloney Is Owner of Eweco Park Property

Charles Maloney of Oshkosh has purchased the Eweco park property on Lake Winnebago two miles south of Oshkosh, he announced today.

Maloney, who operates the Cinderella ballroom near Appleton, bought the park from the Wisconsin Power and Light company. The park includes 12 acres, a ballroom with concessions, and 700 feet of lake frontage.

Maloney, who has been leasing Eweco park during summers of the last five or six years, plans to make improvements.

Scolds Small Boys for Stealing Green Melons

Spokane, Wash.—(AP)—Four small boys fingered through a stern lecture by Sheriff Ralph Buckley on melon theft. Finally Buckley tasted Exhibit A. He looked up, glowered, and barked:

"You should have known better—these melons are green!"

Seattle—(AP)—Detective Lieutenant William D. Rehmkne, pursuing an automobile thief, parked a police car equipped with another county's license as a camouflage in a downtown alley.

When he returned the car was gone.

Police had impounded it for being parked in an alley.

CCC Camp Transfer To Lakewood From Mountain Held Up

Washington—(AP)—A recommendation that the civilian conservation corps camp at Mountain, Wis., be moved to Lakewood, Wis., is being reviewed by the forestry service in the light of protests and new developments.

Forestry officials said the camp transfer had been approved by the CCC on the basis of their recommendations and that retention of the camp in its present location would depend upon a change of recommendation.

Whether the service would make a new recommendation was expected to be decided in a "few days," forestry officials reported.

They said that after the removal was ordered, a question of advisability had arisen and then a protest was filed by local residents who contended there was no advantage in the transfer from a viewpoint. Further investigation was made but the results have not yet been laid before the CCC director.

Any decision, it was said, would be based on a finding of which location would offer the best center from which to work.

Forestry officials said that "difficulty with a lease" on the land on which the camp is located had figured in the original decision. The lease had expired and the land had changed ownership.

This was said by the officials to have now been "satisfactorily smoothed out."

Miss Sarah Brooks, 1014 Hawley avenue, and Mrs. Frank Murphy, N. State street, attended the funeral of Peter Pluegers at Fond du Lac Wednesday morning.

The annual institute for teachers will be held at the courthouse Aug. 27 and 28. The sessions on the first day will be for beginning teachers and those who have not taught in Outagamie county. The meeting will close at noon. General sessions for all teachers will be held on the second day.

Take Registrations For Last Camp Week

Registrations for the final week of the valley council scout camp at Gardner Dam are being accepted this week at the Appleton office. The last week of the season begins Sunday, with about 50 scouts now in camp.

Interesting Fact About Appleton

The Chicago and Northwestern Railway extended its line from Oshkosh to Appleton in 1860 and the first passenger train appeared in Appleton March 5, 1861.

The locomotive was called "The Pioneer" and its arrival was the occasion for a great celebration. In July of the previous year, Appleton citizens voted 279-9 in favor of aiding the railroad to the amount of $20,000.

Construction of the tracks between Oshkosh and Appleton continued throughout the winter of 1860-61. Records show that residents of Oshkosh were much opposed to extension of the road to Appleton. There is a story to the effect that a gang of men from Oshkosh tore up 40 rods of track after it had been laid, the city being anxious to remain the northern terminal of the road.

Construction on a depot and engine house was started immediately. The depot stood on the present site of the Schlafier company's tin shop on N. Bates street.

Dormitory Report

A 91 per cent occupancy of Y. M. C. A. dormitories is reported for July by Homer Gebhardt, general secretary. Total lodgings were 2,577, compared to 2,655 in June and 2,161 in July of last year.

Director Tells Kiwanis About Relief Problem

Says Appleton Has Low Per Capita Cost; 125 On Relief at Present

Warning against the danger of allowing part of the city's population to become what he termed "relief minded," F. A. W. Hammond, Appleton relief director, explained the city's relief setup before Kiwanis club members at Conway hotel yesterday noon.

About 125 are now on the city's relief roll, of which the greater part are unemployable, Hammond said. He compared the city's per capita relief cost with other Wisconsin cities, pointing out a survey showed Appleton with $2.25 compared to such costs as $9.96 for Oshkosh, $7.75 for Fond du Lac and $7.90 for Sheboygan.

The mere supplying of necessities does not constitute an effective relief program, Hammond brought out. Constructive work is necessary to prepare children of relief families to become wage earners.

The director told how relief applicants are interviewed and investigated, and outlined problems in regard to legal residence. He described the city's arrangement with Appleton grocers whereby the stores agree to accept a profit of only 12 1/2 per cent on food bought for relief distribution.

Nazi Bombers In Attack Upon Croydon Port

had been destroyed—286 in five days of intensive warfare since a week ago today—and that seven British fighters had been lost, a total of 75.

From midnight to dawn British airmen rained bombs on the French coast. Accompanied by a wailing of sirens heard across the channel, 100 vivid flashes were observed from one point along on the British coast.

In the war at sea, a German submarine sank the 16,923-ton armed merchant cruiser Transylvania, once a West Indies cruise ship operating out of New York.

The admiral said the sinking occurred somewhere in the Atlantic. Between 30 and 40 sailors believed lost but more than 300 officers and men were landed at a west coast port.

Norse Ship Menaced

New York — The Norwegian freighter Thermopylae, 6,655 tons, radioed today that she was being "tracked by a mystery ship" at a position well within the neutrality zone set up by the 21 American republics.

The ship's first message intercepted by Mackay Radio indicated a submarine attack. Later the ship said "no distress but please inform my position."

Coast guard officials began an investigation.

defense were understood to be among the candidate's approaches to those two questions.

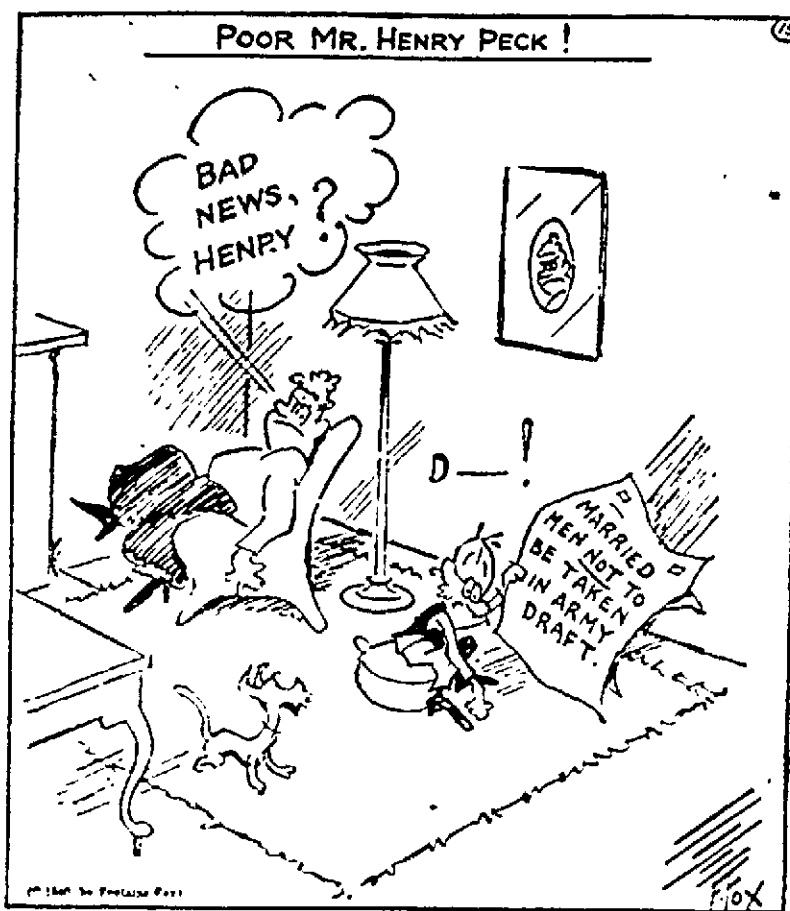

Willkie was expected to emphasize particularly his belief that the problem of national defense is intermeshed with that of industrial production.

While the candidate has given no public statement of his stand on conscription, some of his callers have indicated he would approve the idea.

Willkie reported yesterday that General Hugh Johnson, who favors conscription, had been one of his "particular advisers" in the preparation of his acceptance address.

After his Elwood address, Willkie will return to Rushville for a few days. His plans thereafter are indefinite. Since coming to Colorado Springs July 9 he has conferred with scores of party leaders and others and has made a trip through Wyoming and Utah and another to Des Moines, Iowa.

with lighter machine guns mounted on the handlebars.

General Fredendall said the present armament of the division was believed adequate to meet any attack. Recent tests, he declared, have indicated the desirability of more frequent use of the 105 mm. howitzer, "but I think we will always have to have the 75 mm. gun for shooting up tanks."

The combat team idea of the streamlined division is not new, General Fredendall declared.

"It really started in the World war where the same artillery battalions were used to support the same infantry regiment day after day. The combat team, as we use it now, is good as long as the division is dispersed over a wide area, but the minute one combat team meets opposition, we swarm like bees around that opposition in order to overcome it."

National guard units continued their preliminary training drills. Library, Miss Sleeth was librarian then.

Scotland last night, attacking an airport and convoys in the vicinity of Moray firth.

The German air attack hitherto has been centered on southern England. But last night, DNB said, the airport at Kinloss in Elgin on Moray firth was "successfully bombed" and fires were started at an airport at Montrose, between Aberdeen and Dundee.

Destruction yesterday of 28 British planes, 22 in the air and "at least six" on the ground, was reported in the morning communique, which conceded 12 German craft were missing.

Nation Needs Better Business Men—Maas

West Bend —(P)—William C. Maas, candidate for the Republican U. S. senatorial nomination, declared yesterday that "a business administration is our best guaranty of national security."

"If the New Dealers have made any one fact clear to the American people," Maas said, "it is that they are unable to spend huge sums of money without waste, extravagance and confusion. We cannot tolerate any of these things in the handling of our defense fund."

came as the senate settled down to its fifth day of debate on the conscription issue.

In the house, meanwhile, Democratic leaders drove ahead in hopes of getting a final vote by nightfall on senate-approved legislation authorizing the president to mobilize the national guard and army reservists for a year's active service.

Republican Provision Leaders first faced the task, however, of defeating a Republican-supported effort to limit the service of guardsmen and militia to the continental United States—a restriction previously voted down by the senate.

Evidently anticipating ultimate approval for the mobilization measure, the war department disclosed yesterday that revised schedules had been prepared to have all guard units — some 220,000 men — in active service by Jan. 1, 1941. If the law passes, officers said, the first group of 55,000 would be called Sept. 15.

The German White Paper Comes to Town

A handsomely produced booklet entitled The German White Paper and limited to the printing of the 15 documents found at Warsaw which deal largely with alleged American influence upon the European war is being given general circulation.

It contains the legend that its cost is $1, perhaps to induce appreciation of its value, but it is sent unrequested and unbilled. It was printed in New York City but at whose expense it remains silent. It contains a foreword by one Gratten which, if taken literally, suggests that the entire document, as well as similar documents published by other countries, are worthless or nearly so.

What shall we do with 70 pages of these Polish documents when the most their introducer can say for them is that they "contain some proportion of truth" and that, ordinarily, books of this sort are rarely "complete and utter fakes" but the fakery about them is generally one of two sorts, without giving us the key to this particular sort.

In fact Mr. Gratten's foreword, telling of the forms of fakery employed by Russians, British, French and Germans alike, is the most revealing part of the publication and entitled it to some respect even though it were printed only in that candid manner to disarm the reader.

All these documents might be easily and quickly discarded were it not that they place in the mouths of our diplomats words merely repeating those flowing from their chief, President Roosevelt.

Thus when an officer of the Polish General Staff sends a note to his superior telling of his conversation with Commander Gade, our naval attaché, and we find the note informed that "the possibilities for speedy aid to Great Britain and France are being studied in America" we merely observe that our numerous representatives abroad are speaking consistently with the words of Mr. Roosevelt. And when we see the Polish ambassador at Washington writing Warsaw of his interview with Mr. Bullitt and that the latter declared that the United States would take part in the approaching war "but only after Great Britain and France had made the first move" we see nothing whatever unusual since the President has consistently acted out this very idea and only temporarily put on the brakes to slide through the campaign with as little uproar as possible. When there is added to the foregoing the letter of the Polish ambassador at Paris with his quotation from Mr. Bullitt that "should war break out we shall certainly not take part in it at the beginning but we shall end it" nothing is found inconsistent with the openly stated attitude of the Administration for long.

So the White Paper really tells us nothing that we did not know, but in revealing the activity behind the scenes we begin to realize very fully our important contribution to the present existence of war. For England and France were hunking Poland up to resist. And each had to buck the other up with the reminder that America, as of yore, would send its millions and foot the bills. It is quite likely that the President never fully appreciated his important part in stopping compromise and starting this war. Hardly anything is more enjoyable to a man in Mr. Roosevelt's position than to bluster around the country shaking his fist and promising dreadful punishment to some far off enemy who he thinks is quite unlikely to call the bluff.

But the value of the White Paper as an authentic instrument is greatly lessened by the insertion of the sixth document purporting to be written by the Polish ambassador at Washington to his home office. It is a crude but gentle effort just in the middle of the story to drop before the reader's attention the sinister and malignant conduct of "international Jewry." The natural impression on made by this report is that it was written in Berlin in the highly spiced and grating language of constant German tirades against the Jews. It is asking too much of credulity to picture the Polish ambassador at Washington gleefully telling Warsaw how the Jews in America are whipping the rest of us into a fighting mood because they control "almost 100 per cent radio, film, daily and periodical press."

All in all we must vote the White Paper a failure since the believable things in it are well known here anyway and it carries the clear mark of forgery and alteration, just as Mr. Gratten implied in his foreword although, perhaps, he spoke for another purpose.

Supply and Consumption Of Dairy Products

Dairying, like every great industry, is affected somewhat by numerous factors which may aid or hamper it.

It must not ignore experts like Dr. Salisbury of Cornell who recently pointed to the necessity of improving herds so as to secure greater productivity without proportionate costs.

But by and large prosperity in the dairy farm will be controlled by two principal factors even though it be influenced by all proper considerations that involve efficiency. And however essential may be the numerous material and helpful proposals it would be a great mistake to ever lose sight of the importance of the major influences.

There is insufficient consumption of dairy products for the amount produced. We know that the sturdiest races in Europe consume per person far more than Americans. So consumption can and must be stimulated.

But stimulating production by subsidizing dairying all over the country is rather a stupid act, and must remain so until consumption, free from the ties that now suppress and smother it, moves up to a normal figure.

The high importance of prosperity on the farm is too evident to let it become a mere plaything of politics. For as long as a principal national pillar is unsteady or leaning askant the nation must remain ill at ease.

"And in Masquerade"

Despite the more than seven billions spent by the New Deal for our armed forces we note that when those forces are ordered out for maneuvers they haven't enough tanks to even play a game with. They have adopted the practice of covering some big trucks with the word tank as a substitute for the real article.

Recently Secretary Stimson told a congressional committee that of the 4081 planes authorized two months ago by congress only 33 have been ordered.

We suggest to the president the next time he gives one of those buoyant, jaunty and hilarious reports to the country of the condition of its armed forces he merely give the total figures of (1) on hand, (2) on order, (3) authorized but not yet ordered and (4) in masquerade.

It will make a much better looking picture and what we need is a genial and blithe optimism from a heart that is happy while yet it may be so.

No Information Permitted

The demand of the Russian government that all American diplomatic and consular representatives in Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania be called home is consistent with the studied Moscow policy to prevent the spread of information of its methods and tactics.

Even the ambassador we maintain at Moscow is tolerated with ill-concealed dislike and suspicion. But a limited number of officials in Moscow may be watched and covered carefully, their telephones tapped, their visitors tagged and their own visits shadowed.

Perhaps the Russian government has formulated this policy as a necessary protection suggested by the fear that if the world ever learned the truth about this heaven on earth the crowding of the multitudes towards the Russian borders to live in sweetness and light would create too heavy a burden for the soviet larder.

The French War Guilt Trial

The chorus of administration trumpeters who have suddenly gone on the air and into the prints with acid denunciation of the war guilt trials ordered by the French government raises the suspicion that our administration at Washington is a little fearful lest its communications, directly and indirectly, with the French government, and its promises to them, will sound pretty nasty to the American people.

If the White House has conducted our foreign affairs in a manner which it now regrets, or which it believes will hurt it in the coming campaign, a heavy barrage carrying shells full of denunciation is the accepted method of meeting the issue.

An attack upon a possible source of hurtful information certainly can do no harm and may befuddle the voter.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

HANDS

There is always a hand to help him
Up the stairs and down,
A hand to prevent his falling,
A hand to cradle his frown.

Grandmother's touch is healing
And Auntie's is comforting,
Mother has hands as tender
And soft as an angel's wing.

Sister, though she is little,
With hands that are small and dear,
Is ready with gentle pressure
To dry baby brother's tear.

Daddy's big hands are soothing
And light, on a fevered head,
And Julia's, toilworn and weary,
Are soft when he goes to bed.

We hope for the youngest member,
As life makes its stern demands,
He'll be helped over all rough places
By the touch of loving hands.

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

BY DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

Washington—There was a double purpose behind that official spanking of John Cudahy, U. S. ambassador to Nazi-occupied Belgium.

One was to repudiate the millionaire Milwaukeean's extraordinary appeasement interview. The other was a pointed warning to Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. ambassador to Britain, not to indulge in such talk.

It has been no secret to the state department for some time that the wealthy ambassador from Boston is distinctly appeasement-minded.

On close terms with the ill-fated Chamberlain government, Kennedy has evinced greater concern privately over the possible political after-effects of the war than repelling the Nazi-fascist aggressors. He viewed the inclusion of British labor leaders in the Churchill cabinet with alarm.

The Nazi air attacks seem to weigh heavily on Kennedy and of late he has talked considerably about returning to the United States and resigning. He also is displaying sharp disapproval of the president's uncompromising anti-axis policy as well as other administration matters.

In inner state department circles Kennedy is tied up directly with Cudahy's outburst. The press cables did not report the fact, but the state department learned that Cudahy conferred with Kennedy before sounding off to the newsmen.

DRAFT DODGERS

Business is demanding—and getting—very generous tax concessions to produce the tanks, planes, guns and other weapons the country needs for its defense. In a number of cases, the government, in effect, will build plants which will belong to business.

But although the corporation bill still is far from enactment, certain business advisers already are tipping off businessmen on how they can dodge serving their country in uniform.

One of these outfits is the Research Institute of America, Inc., with a Madison Ave., N. Y., address and a large clientele. In its August 3 "Business and Legislative Report," edited by Leo M. Cherner, the Institute gives these helpful suggestions on "How you can protect your key workers against conscriptions":

1. First make sure the business is essential to war production. This can be done by converting a part of it to such activity.

2. Prepare to prove the necessity of the business, the importance of its key workers and the reasons why they can't be replaced.

3. Place the men desired to be kept out of the draft in key positions.

Note—William Knudsen, Edward R. Stettinius and other business executives on the National Defense commission are not only working for the government without pay, but are paying their own living costs in Washington.

WILLKIE BIOGRAPHER

Newsmen combing Elwood, Ind., for local color on its celebrated native son have found Frank Willkie, uncle of the GOP standard bearer, to be the best source of information about him.

Uncle Frank is a husky retired steel worker who looks a great deal like his nephew. He is a Catholic, former member of the Elwood city council and a few years ago was an unsuccessful Democratic candidate for mayor. He explains the one "I" spelling of his name by saying that it is spelled both ways in the family.

According to Frank, the founder of the Willkie clan in the U. S. was William Josef Willkie, a German Catholic, who migrated to northern Indiana near the middle of the last century. His sons, Herman Willkie and Paul Willkie, also born in Germany, changed their names when they entered a Methodist College at Fort Wayne, Ind.

Herman, the Republican candidate's father, married a Methodist and changed to that faith. The father was a successful and highly respected lawyer and his mother, a very talented woman, was the first of her sex to be admitted to the Indiana bar.

Although Wendell was born and reared in Elwood and the little town is in a high fever of excitement over his fame and the acceptance ceremony, a few months ago it was quite different.

Jim Carr, members of the Republican State committee, laughingly tells the story that several weeks before the Philadelphia convention he got a hunch that Willkie might be nominated and went to the Elwood Chamber of Commerce with the suggestion that the town start boosting Willkie for President.

Wendell Willkie, "languidly" inquired the Chamber of Commerce functionary, "who's he?"

Today, pictures of the home-town hero are on every lamp post and every window. The cost of the ceremony will run around $50,000. Six hundred uniformed state police and several hundred plain-clothesmen from neighboring cities will handle the crowd. Only 75,000 will be able to get within seeing distance of the speaker's platform. The remainder of the 200,000 who are expected to attend will follow the proceedings through an extensive loud speaker system.

BACHELOR CHAMPIONS CHILDREN

The congressman who is leading the fight to provide U. S. havens for British refugee children has no children of his own. However, although a bachelor, 37-year-old Representative Tom Hennings, of Mo., has long been a champion of youngsters.

For years he was St. Louis director of the "Big Brothers" organization and was instrumental in providing recreation centers and camps for underprivileged children.

"I guess that's what led me to join Marshall Field, Barry Bingham, (crusading young publisher of the Louisville Courier-Journal) and others who are trying to do something for these unfortunate European kids," Hennings explains. "It just isn't the American way to stand by and let them be killed by bombs when we have a big free country over here to shelter them."

Gangling, good-natured and a one-time Cornell track star, Hennings has found enthusiasm for his bill in unexpected quarters.

The other day, riding to his office in a taxi-cab, the driver recognized him and began firing a volley of questions about the legislation. Surprised at this interest, Hennings asked the cabman about it.

"I want to get the dope," was the reply. "My wife and I have applied for one of these kids. We've got a little place with a big yard and there's no reason why it shouldn't be used. It just isn't right that those kids should be bombed."

MERRY GO-ROUND

Chip Robert, general secretary of the Democratic National committee, is announcing to the world that while he is responsible for his wife's debts, he is not responsible for what she says or writes. His announcement came the day after his wife, the glamorous Evie, published a guest social column in which she described the problem of naming a Great Dane puppy. Wrote Evie: "Until I get him thoroughly house-broken I'm just calling him Ickes."

A Bystander In Washington

BY JACK STINNETT

Washington—Things a young man learns about the capital—but not by looking at buildings:

That high government officials are not always trying to throw a smoke screen over the other fellow's point of view... sometimes bend over backwards not to. When Cordell Hull issued a statement recently on the Havana conference (outlining many dangers by which he believed this hemisphere beset) he had it ready two days before release and asked newspapers to hold it so it would not conflict with report of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's radio address expressing views just opposite to those held by the administration. (Note: Pessimists said phooey... Mr. Hull did not want to take any of the play away from Gen. John J. Pershing's speech which was much more in line.)

That those long-winded congressional committee hearings and equally long-winded debates on the senate floor (debate in the house is limited and representatives have to take to the radio if they want to spout at length) are not just for blowing off steam. They are the lodestones by which lawmakers test public reaction. Often bills that start out as if they are going through without a hitch turn up on the floor in an entirely altered form as committee hearings result in an overwhelming public reaction.

How Lobbyists Work
That lobbyists are a recognized part of our form of lawmaking in spite of the stigma attached to the title because of the graft and abuses through the years. Often, it is the man or group that hires the lobbyist who is pilked. Many lobbyists carry no weight whatever, are considered pests.

The most effective lobbies are the pressure-from-home lobby and the society lobby. Observers agree that the latter doesn't carry the weight it used to when society meant more in American life. But the top-hat and tiera system still works well in some cases.

The pressure-from-home method is probably tops. A representative or senator pays more attention to mail and telegrams from his constituents than to anything else. After all, they are the ones who butter his bread. The flaw in the pressure-from-home lobby is that a lot of senators and representatives have taken to checking up on the senders of said telegrams and letters and we've been to the legislature that is to be balked or put over if the senders are discovered to be phony.

Those Speeches You Hear

That the speeches delivered by government officials, members of congress, administration spokesmen and administration enemies frequently are NOT written by the men who deliver them. Delivering a speech is one thing, but writing it is another. Often good speakers lack the knack of setting them down. Sometimes pressure of business prevents a man devoting time to writing a speech. In nearly all instances, the speakers confer with the authors, give them an outline of their ideas and let it go at that.

That President Roosevelt issues some of his most important stories for Monday morning newspapers when news is dull. Stories issued then almost invariably will get a good play. (Other political leaders have discovered this, too, with the result that Monday morning news is not nearly as dull as it used to be.)

Just a Step Behind the News

By Dave Boone

The papers are full of important news, but nothing is much more important than the report that J. W. Steele, a North Kansas City man has found a way to make pins disappear from men's shirts. Mr. Steele has invented a folding machine which does the work that those 200 or 300 pins used to do.

It's all done by cardboard and paper supports that keep a new shirt in shape until the buyer wants to put it on. Then he just unfolds it by a good hard shake. It's a bloodless operation and it cheers me up a lot. It always seemed to me that hidden with the pins in my new shirts were a dozen old razor blades.

Mr. Steele should go down in history as one of the truly great benefactors of mankind. I propose a national holiday in his honor and some marble shafts all over the country.

I wish the British and Germans could get together on what damage is being done in the blitzkrieg. If they would even get close together it would help. The daily results in a first-rate war shouldn't sound like claims and counter-claims in a small-town election.

The news I'm waiting for is whether Wendell Willkie will permit any Coca Cola drinking at the Ellwood party Saturday in view of the fact Jim Farley's joined the company.

BY J. K. KYLE, CHAIRMAN

Progressive Party of Wisconsin

Madison—As the state political campaign of 1940 swings into action, there is much uncertainty and confusion as to the stand of some political groups and their leaders. However, there is no question as to the aims and purposes of Progressives in the coming primary and general election.

The Progressive party is pledged to the restoration in this state of the kind of constructive and progressive government that made Wisconsin famous throughout this nation and the world. Only through such a state government can the preservation of democracy in the United States.

With only a few interludes, the state of Wisconsin since the turn of the century has solved its problems of government through the application of the principle that the best shall serve the state. Through close cooperation between educational leaders and the state government, the services of the most able and experienced men and women have been made available to the state for the purpose of studying difficult governmental problems and proposing plans for a sound solution. Their only responsibility has been to the state, and their only mandate has been to give equal and just consideration to the welfare of all the people regardless of wealth or influence.

Known as the "Wisconsin Idea," this method of dealing with problems of government has been accepted throughout the nation, but the state of Wisconsin maintained its position as the outstanding example of the successful application of this ideal from the beginning of the twentieth century until the year 1938. Always recognizing that there is no panacea that will solve our perplexing economic, social, and political problems, we have proceeded along the line that each problem must be studied thoroughly and that a workable solution must be proposed upon the basis of the facts. It has been a truly scientific approach.

Looking back over the years, we can cite with pride the specific proposals that have placed Wisconsin in the forefront of all states as a model of good government. Among the earlier achievements were laws providing for primary elections, civil service, workmen's compensation, protection of child labor, pure foods, cooperative marketing of farm products, public utility regulation, and many others. Within the last decade Wisconsin has taken the lead in the enactment of legislation providing for unemployment insurance, a state labor code, old age assistance, rural electrification (WPA), disposition of surplus agricultural products (WAA), and other measures to deal with the critical problems arising since 1929.

Although other political factions attacked the Progressives for sponsoring the legislation I have cited, the enactment of these measures has met with such a favorable response from the people that rarely, if ever, has a political party proposed their repeal in a political campaign.

In these critical times the question often has been raised as to whether or not our democratic process can function with the needed efficiency to cope with present day difficulties. Progressives firmly believe that democracy in our own state can be depended upon to function effectively if our state government has able leadership with de-

Personal Health Talks

PRACTICE PROPHYLAXIS

The other day a news story told of a gentleman now 91 years old who, at age 77, had invested his entire fortune in an annuity, and now spends the annual income from his annuity to aid young people who are struggling to get the necessary college or university training to fit them for a profession. The gentleman retains for his own living expenses only about $300 a year. From the news story it would seem that he had no dependents and therefore only his own simple needs to provide for.

Of course I don't know as yet just how it feels to be 77, but I should imagine it must be pretty sad to have no one to love, no child, grandchild or great grandchild, no body to favor, help or encourage, only yourself to think about. For any one so unfortunate as that, the arrangement of the gentleman described would seem a happy solution. For, no matter how you invest, gamble, or squander it, the money that buys the greatest joy or happiness is the money you give to individuals or organizations that can make the best use of it. Especially so, when you deliberately deny yourself some luxury or comfort in order to make your contribution the more substantial. That old gentleman, chuckling over the way he won his bet with the insurance company, is enjoying life in a way too many old curmudgeons never have dreamed of, and he looks forward eagerly to his first centennial.

Now my secret ambition is to become a real specialist. I'd like to conduct a practice limited to prophylaxis. That would be out of the question if one must live by his profession. In the first place, only an occasional layman has a clear idea of the meaning of prophylaxis. In the second place, not one layman in a thousand (my estimate) today is willing to pay for the personal service of a qualified prophylactician (my term for the Doctor of Preventive Medicine who limits his practice to prevention of disease)—incidentally Doctor of Preventive Medicine is my invention or suggestion of the degree a forward looking university might offer to graduate Doctors of Medicine who successfully complete a postgraduate course of a year or two in preventive medicine and hygiene.

With the right kind of encouragement and appreciation of the value of an ounce of prevention might develop into a demand for the services of the qualified prophylactician. I'd have a go at it anyway, if I had only myself to think of. As it is I can only offer a suggestion which may interest some one who is interested in elevating the health standard of the country. My suggestion is that such postgraduate courses in Preventive Medicine and Hygiene leading to the degree of Doctor of Preventive Medicine should be endowed and physicians who complete the courses should be subsidized for five years or so in practice, until it becomes possible for the qualified prophylactician to support himself by practice limited to hygiene and prevention.

but friends say it is harmful as the raw starch can't possibly digest. (E.F.H.)

Answer—It is not only harmless but rather beneficial to eat some raw potato, raw carrot, raw turnips or other raw vegetables every day if you like. Some raw starch in the diet promotes a normal preponderance of lactic bacillus activity in the intestine.

Vitamins
If one gets a good variety of fresh vegetables, fresh fruit, fresh milk, eggs is it necessary to take any additional vitamins to maintain good health? (J. S. W.)
Answer—Perhaps not if the diet includes the equivalent of half a pound of whole wheat bread, or three or four tablespoonsful of whole germ. Such a diet as you outline would probably be deficient in vitamin B complex.

Thousands See First Showing Of 'Kavalcade'

Kaukauna Anniversary Pageant Will be Staged Through Sunday Night

Kaukauna — Colorful and historic was the pageant "Kaukauna Kavalcade" which had its premiere showing here last night on the high school athletic field. A crowd of several thousand people watched the dramatic spectacle last night.

The pageant will be continued tonight and every night through Sunday with a concert by the high school band beginning at 8:30 and the pageant at 9 o'clock.

The pageant was opened last night with the crowning of the queen of Kaukauna, Miss Armella Boucher, by Mayor William J. Gantter. This was followed by the presentation of Miss Columbia, Miss Lorraine Martin, and her court of 48 states. The queen and her procession and also that of Miss Columbia marched through an avenue of flags held aloft by Boy Scouts and flanked by men of the American Legion.

The pageant was one of colorful costumes with the action in pantomime form. It was presented last night without a flaw.

Following the presentation was a ballet scene depicting the creation of earth and of man.

Story of Telulah
The scene shifted to an Indian village scene and the story of Telulah's tragedy was presented. Telulah was an Indian princess beloved by two young braves but her choice did not meet her father's approval. A race was arranged and the winner was to receive the hand of Telulah. Her favorite lost and Telulah, heart-broken, went away to a spring where she wept. The spring is now named after her.

Jean Nicolet then appears on the scene, dressed in Oriental robes and firing a gun in each hand. With him came the fur traders and several women to settle the new found lands.

France desired possession of this territory around the Great Lakes and sent representatives to secure it from the Indians. Several priests and a group of French officials, led by Nicholas Perrot as the interpreter, met with the chiefs of several Indian tribes who ceded the land to the French.

With the coming of the French, the fur trade began and the pageant shows the fur traders coming with trade goods which they exchanged for furs.

This scene was followed by one showing a small band of British soldiers, dressed in their red uniforms, attacked by a band of Indians led by Charles de Langlade. In the background could be seen the burning of the British fort.

Trading Post
From then on the pageant takes up the part Kaukauna played in history and the various scenes are a review of over a century of fashions as well as history. The trading post of Dominique Ducharme established in 1790, the anniversary of which Kaukauna is celebrating next appears.

This is followed by a scene depicting army rule in Wisconsin. At the various forts social balls were held, and one of these is presented in the pageant.

The scene shifts back to Kaukauna and the immigration of the Stockbridge Indians from New York. The scene portrays a church service conducted by the Rev. Jesse Miner, director of the mission school here.

Then came the Lawes and the Grignons, the Meades and the Beaulieu's to settle at Kaukauna. The scene shows the arrival of the Lawe family, followed by a party in which they danced the Virginia reel. The women were attired in hoopskirts while the men wore top hats and frock coats. An old brougham carriage was secured for this scene.

Comedy was introduced into the pageant with the scene depicting one of the early schools in Kaukauna in 1850.

The scene shifted to portray one of the early industries of Outagamie county, that of grain farming. The scene was produced by the 4-H clubs and the Future Farmers of America, and was complete with a

MAYOR CROWNS QUEEN—Mayor William J. Gantter placed the crown on the head of Miss Armella Boucher, Kaukauna's sesquicentennial celebration queen, last night to open the premiere showing of the historical pageant, "Kaukauna Kavalcade," in a specially built open air amphitheater. The kavalcade will be shown nightly through Sunday. (Post-Crescent Photo.)

Anniversary Ball Slated for Sunday

Kaukauna—Plans have been completed for the sesquicentennial ball at the Nitingale ballroom Saturday night, according to Frank Mitchell, chairman of the ball.

Both old time and modern music will be provided and Roman Reichel will be in charge of square dances. Members of the committee include Walter Bokeske, Matt Verfurth, and Max Strick.

A trophy will be awarded the oldest person at the dance and another trophy will be given the couple coming the longest distance.

Party of Four Will See Reception Into Mercy Sisters Order

Kaukauna — Mrs. Ernest Landreman, Mary Landreman, Mrs. E. H. Leithen, and Mrs. M. Molitor left today for Des Plaines, Ill., where they will attend the reception of Ann Landreman into the Sisters of Mercy order. They also will visit at Techny mission house at Techny, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kromer and V. L. Murchie of Milwaukee arrived here yesterday to spend several days visiting relatives and friends.

cow, horses, donkey, goat, and a hawwagon.

Then came the Gay '90s and the pageant reproduced the couples on bicycles as they rode through the park, the horse-drawn carriages, and also the "horseless carriages." Following this scene was one which showed the arrival of the railroad at Kaukauna.

The celebration of the centennial banquet and ball in 1890 was the next scene in the pageant. This was followed by a peace tableau scene and a sailor's drill.

To conclude the pageant, the entire cast of over 450 persons joined hands to form a huge wheel, with representatives from the various countries in the world forming the hub to show that the United States has been a melting pot of all countries.

er to the museum, including an order by the war department in 1865 which made his father a corporal in the army. A Bible printed in 1823 but which listed births in the family as far back as 1769 also was loaned by Mr. Walker.

He also loaned an 1818 collection of family prayers, several old candlesticks and a daguerrotype of three Civil war soldiers.

The cancelling pad and stamp used by John Lawe when he was postmaster in 1859 was donated by Postmaster R. H. McCarty.

One of the interesting collections on display at the historical museum is the exhibit of old newspapers loaned to the museum by Mrs. J. W. Conway, Mrs. Meade Richardson, and Mrs. G. Bergman.

The papers have turned yellow with age and some are held together with paper clips and mending tape, but they headline famous events in the country's past.

Among the news printed in these tattered newspapers are the death of Abraham Lincoln, which appears in both the New York Herald and the Chicago Tribune that are on display. There also is a copy of a paper issued at the time of President McKinley's death.

Kaukauna — Holy Cross CYO kept themselves close on the heels of the league-leading Kaukauna Machine corporation by defeating the Hakbarth Owls 7 to 5 at the ball park last night.

The Owls lead until the fourth inning when the CYO scored three runs and increased the lead by another run in the fifth. Vanevenhoven scored the first run for Holy Cross in the first and Van Dyke scored in the third on a bunt down the first base line by Schuman, and Schuman scored later that inning on a single by Vanevenhoven.

Boetz, Biseix and Frank did the scoring for CYO in the fourth and Buchberger in the fifth. Meinert and Kuchelmeister opened up the first inning with runs for the Owls. A triple by Biseix in the fourth scored Driessen, Kobski, and Meyers for the Owls. From then on they were held scoreless.

The Haas Hardware team will play the Goldin Metals at the ball park tonight and the Kaukauna Machine corporation will meet the St. Mary's CYO tomorrow night.

Teach Child That 'Actions Speak Louder Than Words'

BY ANGELO PATRI

Two old family friends had dropped in for an evening of chat and renewed interests. Sonny, aged fifteen, a sophomore in high school, took over the conversation. Whenever anybody tried to express an opinion Sonny did for him and, if he had the temerity to insist upon having his say Sonny drowned him out by the simple expedient of talking louder.

Mother beamed proudly upon him but father looked uneasy and now and then tried to catch his son's eye, even going so far as to say one time, "Just a minute, Sonny, let Uncle Tabor talk." But Sonny did not hear. On and on he talked. He knew exactly what ought to be done and how and when and told it in detail. The guests did not stay too long, saying they had a long way to go and might better start early. Sonny went with them to the door and told them how to go.

Next morning Sonny had to be called four times and finally forced to get out of bed. He was late for school. He had not done his homework. He did not bring home the bread at lunchtime and his mother had to go for it. He was late getting home in the afternoon because he stayed to talk to some of the fellows. His report card was unsatisfactory, mostly C's and D's.

"The teacher must be wrong," Sonny said. "The other boys say he talks like an old man," said his mother.

Talker a Work Shirker

Beware of the talker, who does no real work. It is easy to get into the habit of using words instead of deeds. It is easier to draw one's breath than to use one's brains in association with one's hands. Work has certain pains associated with it always.

Talking uses energy. The heavy talker has little power left for actual work. That's why it's so bad. It does worse. It deceives the talker into believing that he is actually doing something worth while. Many people come to believe they have cured a world evil when they make a speech about what they would do about it if they had the power. And they often succeed in persuading the audience that they, too, have been useful in an emergency because they listened to the speech.

"Actions Speak Louder"
A family in our village got into trouble. Unemployment, illness, neglect, helplessness, afflicted them. An interested, sympathetic neighbor called a meeting and there was much talk about what ought to be done and a committee was appointed. When that committee got around to attend to the family they found them absent. Another neighbor had gone in there, moved them to a decent little place on his grounds, given the man work, sent the sick one to the hospital, and gone his way without a word wasted.

Train children to talk when talk is needed, but teach them to act on what they talk about. Talk has a way of deadening conscience and delaying action, and action is what life requires of us. When a child talks ask him what he has done about it. Ask him always to square the pattern of his life by acting upon it.

Mr. Patri will give personal attention to inquiries from parents and school teachers on the care and development of children. Write him in care of this paper, enclosing a three-cent stamped, addressed envelope for reply.

Case Records of a Psychologist

By Dr. George W. Crane

Psychologist, Northwestern University

Our greatest need in this country, not only in politics but in parent-child relationships, is a little more old-fashioned "horse sense." You will frequently observe, too, that psychology laboratories, after lengthy experimentation, simply prove those axioms which the human race has already accepted for centuries. Take Bobby's case, for instance.

CASE R-146: Bobby M., aged 2, is an energetic youngster.

His mother was standing on the corner, waiting for a bus, when Bobby suddenly ran into the boulevard. She raced after him and brought him back. He appeared gleeful, apparently enjoying the commotion he had caused.

It wasn't two minutes, however, till he had again eluded her and rushed into the street. She ran after him just in time to get him out of the way of an oncoming car.

Before the bus arrived, she had to repeat this process once more. My two older boys, aged 9 and 10, were with me, for we were waiting for the same bus.

"What did you think about that?" I inquired, for they had watched the youngster's antics.

"She should have spanked him the first time," George said positively.

"Maybe I ought to write a Case Record about it," I added.

"Well, if you do, I certainly hope she reads it," he replied, vehemently.

Dumbbell Parents
I wonder how this woman ever expects her child to stay on the sidewalk when she becomes a party to this dangerous game which the child plays?

As soon as she released his hand, he invariably made straight for the street. Luckily, she caught him each time. But someday she will not be present to stop him, so we'll have another traffic death on the Chicago boulevard.

This mother's behavior is stupid. She is actually educating her toddler to run out in the streets by her sin of omission.

She omitted a sharp switching or a painful snap of her finger which would have made the child associate pain with running into the street, and thus have helped build up the habit of avoiding that action henceforth.

Instead, she has let him develop the idea that it is great fun to run into the street. He thinks of it as a game, where mamma chases sonny. She didn't even reprimand him verbally.

We need a little more "horse sense" in the brand of child psychology which too many sentimental parents are practicing with their children nowadays.

During the last generation, some sob sisters have sold too many parables on the belief that corporal punishment was a mark of barbarism and that no child ever needed a spanking.

Don't believe such nonsense! When children are too young to understand the word "asphyxiation" regarding the gas jets on the kitchen stove, or to appreciate the likelihood of death by speeding automobile, you better dust off the old hickory switch or peach tree limb.

Pain has been one of nature's best teachers. It is understood in every language and by all ages. Nobody is too young to learn from this teacher. It also works on animals as well as human beings.

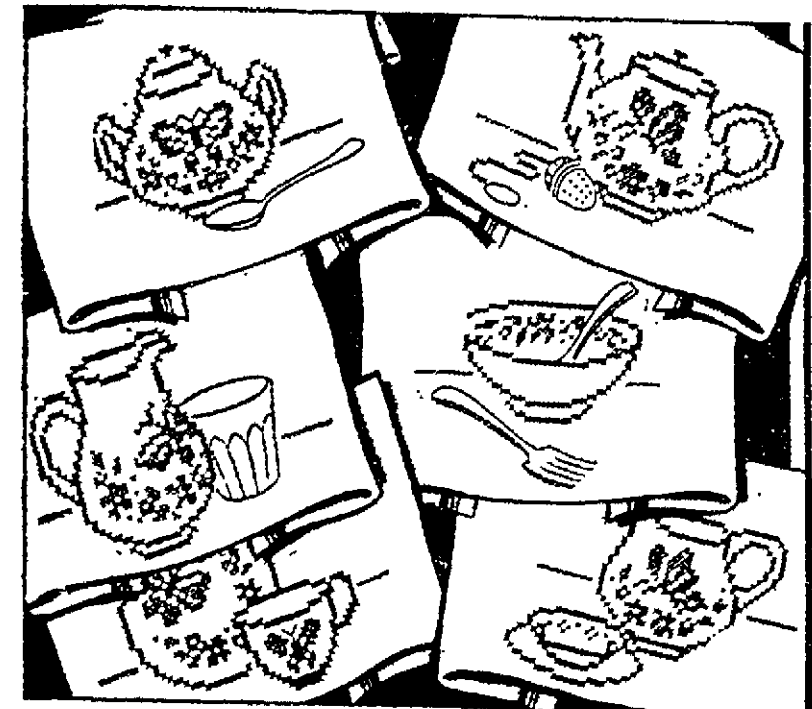

Heed The Animal Trainer
Animal trainers know that the best rule to follow is always to reward the good and penalize the bad act. Our psychological experiments with white rats have also shown that they learn a complicated maze much more quickly when they receive an electric shock on entering the blind alleys, and a bit of cheese when they thread the correct pathways.

Corporal punishment can easily be overdone by indolent parents who prefer to lean upon the rod instead of evolving clever psychological strategy for gaining the same ends.

But always employ horse sense. In emergencies, you haven't time to debate with young Bobby, and expound on the error of his ways regarding rushing into the street. He is too young to profit much from your oratory, anyway. But he can feel a switch and quickly learn a safe habit through the wise instruction of Professor Pain.

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of this newspaper, enclosing stamped, self-addressed envelope and a dime to cover typing or printing costs when you seek normal advice or one of his psychological charts.)

MATERIAL GIFTS

It is natural and commendable to want to return all kindness shown you, but it is never necessary to make a material return for an obligation such as that described in the following letter:

"I should like to do something that seems appreciative for the parents of a friend who has taken me home with her over many weeks this summer. They have been lovely to me, and have told me many times that they were very glad to have their daughter bring me with her. I live at a club for professional women in the city, and have nowhere to invite them to stay with me. But perhaps there is something else to do that would properly take the place of a return invitation. Will you please tell me what it is. For all their friendliness, they are quite formal people, and I do not want to fail to show my gratitude for their kindness."

Older people who invite younger people to stay in their houses never expect an invitation from the latter. To show your appreciation in your considerate behavior while staying in their house is the very best return possible to make.

The Wedding Cake

Dear Mrs. Post: My wedding supper is being given at an inn, after which Mother had invited the guests home to see the gifts. We wondered whether it might not be better to have the wedding cake out at home after supper instead of at supper. There will be other dessert for supper.

Answer: The proper time and place to cut the cake at a sit-down wedding supper is after dessert. Wedding cake is never considered dessert. Moreover, each person's share is supposed to be little more than one or two mouthfuls, one eaten at the wedding, the other saved to take home to dream on!

A Refugee

Dear Mrs. Post: The country of my birth is one of those which is no more. I am doubly unhappy since I cannot forget my home, that has been turned to ashes. But I am asking you about politeness. For the past months people have said, "Well, how does it feel to be a Nazi?" Yesterday, some one asked me whether I was French or Belgian, and a friend answered for me, "She is neither any longer; now she's a Nazi!" I felt myself getting red, and I wanted to speak my mind, but I checked myself and felt miserable for not daring to show more loyalty to my own people. How can such cruel jests be answered?

Answer: Cruel people who ask refugees about the war, or ask those in deep mourning about those whom they have lost, can not be answered in any way that will make them understand their lack of kindness. To say "Please, let us talk of something else," or to turn away is all one can do. But those of us who are not stricken by the war can at least try to talk of other things in the presence of all strangers.

THE HOME GARDENER by EDWIN H. PERKINS

If you have enjoyed a vacation away from home and returned to find your garden dry, parched or sunbaked, it will do little good to sprinkle it lightly with the hose and hope for the best. All your wishes will not place water at the roots of those plants that need it. Unless you have a day and a night at your disposal, during which time you can derive some pleasure from holding the business end of a hose, you and your garden will profit by watering it with some one of the inexpensive gadgets made to simplify the drenching of the soil.

Least expensive are the ringlike affairs punched with tiny holes all around their circumference. Screw a hose into one of these gadgets, turn on the water and let it run. Three to four hours in one spot is not too much. If your limit of watering is measured by a meter's registrations, keep your eyes off the meter for as long as your conscience and purse strings will allow. Then move the gadget to another spot and repeat the operation.

Where extensive areas are to be watered the non-rotating type of sprinkler which lays the water down in a square approximately fifty feet from side to side accomplishes a great deal in a short space of time. Obviously such a device is not included in the least expensive class. For large places, however, the saving in time fully justified its high cost.

My Neighbor Says—
Tomato seeds may be saved for next season if chosen from tomatoes grown on plants which yield heavily of good fruit. Do not save seeds from tomatoes grown on a poor-bearing plant.

Always soak dishes used for dough, pastry, egg and milk mixtures for five minutes in cold water before washing them in warm water and soap suds. Soak greasy and sugary pans and dishes in hot water before washing them in the regular way.

One bushel of pears or peaches, cut in halves, yields about 16 quarts of mixture when put up in medium sirup. One bushel of tomatoes will yield about 24 quarts when canned.

Pickled beets, chopped, mixed with chopped cooked meats and smoked ham make a tasty filling for hot toasted sandwiches.

Beauty and You

SCRUBS WITH BRUSH—This young beauty scrubs her neck, chest and back with soap and a brush with medium stiff bristles. For her face she uses a softer complexion brush.

Soap and water and a good scrub brush or two is the inexpensive remedy for many skin ailments. Minor blemishes, goose flesh on arms, and muddy complexions can all be corrected by a good scrubbing.

Especially during the summer, when we perspire more freely, we should take at least one hour a week for a thorough body scrub to cleanse the pores. You may use a bland soap and a complexion brush for your face, a slightly stiffer brush for your neck, chest and arms, and a regular long-handled bath brush for the rest of your body. Of course you use a nailbrush and toothbrush daily, so that makes a total of five brushes for skin beauty and health! Literally a wardrobe of brushes.

Unless your skin is very sensitive, a gentle brushing with the right soap will add greatly to its beauty. But you must do this cleansing at a time when you do not have to rush out for an engagement, for any skin is likely to stay a bit red for a while after the brushing. It gradually tones down and has a nicer color.

Cream your face well and hop into a tub of warm water. No unguents this time—just plain water. As your body becomes warmer, the facial pores will open and the cream will give them a deep lubricating. Leave the cream on until the bath is over and then remove it with tissue. Gently scrub your face with the special bland soap and complexion brush. Rinse it thoroughly with both warm and cold water splashing.

After a brief soaping in the tub, take the small body brush and go over neck, chest, upper back and arms thoroughly. Work up a good lather and brush away. You will sense a delicious tingle and that tingle indicates that your sluggish skin is being stimulated. Every pore will be cleansed and will breathe more freely after this shampoo.

With the long-handled bath brush work down to the very end of your spine. The brushing not only cleanses but acts as a welcome massage to your back muscles. Finish by brushing your legs and feet, especially the soles, which are always neglected when you shower!

Air Baths Good For Skin
Let the water out of the tub and turn on the shower for a clear, cool rinsing. Dry with a fresh bath towel and if you can spare the time, and if the temperature of the room permits it, give your skin an airing. Simply remain nude as you touch up your fingernails, give your feet a pedicure and lay out the clothes you intend wearing. Air baths are as good for the skin as sun baths or sunbaths, and we take too few of them. Just make certain that you do not get in a draft, or that the room is not too chilly.

It might be well to close the pores of the face again with cold water or an ice rub, with the ice wrapped in a linen towel. Use only the thinnest of foundation lotions in hot weather and the minimum of makeup. If you have a healthy tan, do without all make-up except lipstick. Somehow we modern women must wear lipstick!

"Care of the Dry and Sensitive Skin" is a free leaflet. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped (3-cent) envelope if you request it.

that extreme pains and care must be taken by declarer to give himself the best possible chance. After he ruffs the opening lead of the club king his best and safest line of play is to cash one spade honor, then ruff a low spade with one of declarer's low trumps. He should reenter his hand with a low trump to the ace. If East shows out, it is obvious that no more spades can be ruffed, since dummy's K-8 of hearts are vital to the picking up of West's jack. But it must be noted, declarer is still a long way from being defeated on this hand; in fact, he still has two excellent strings in his bow. He should go about his business finessing against and picking up West's heart jack, then should lay down his other high spade honor in the hope that the suit was originally split 3-3.

West's failure to follow the third round destroys this chance, and then declarer is forced to fall back on his last hope. That, of course, is to lay down the diamond ace and finessing against the queen on the one remaining chance that the diamond suit can be brought home solidly. The crucial point is that declarer must not get himself into a position where he must depend on the heart jack conveniently dropping on the second round of the suit.

Actually, since my correspondent trumped the third round of spades with the heart king, it would not have taken this 4-0 break of trumps to defeat him. A quite likely 3-1 break might have been equally fatal. For purposes of thorough analysis, however, let us assume that all four trumps were in the West hand (as shown in this diagram), and it will be observed

Wife Has No Right to Open Husband's Mail

BY DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix—My wife has left me because it became necessary to take my mother and father to live in the house with us. She writes me that she wants to live with me, but will not until I get rid of the old folks. I am not in a position now to keep up two separate homes, but I believe I could do so in a short time if she would come back and give me a little moral support. I have always been nice to my wife's family and would like for her to treat mine the same way, but from the day we were married she has virtually shut the door in their faces, so they have been seldom in our home. She thinks I am mistreating her by not forcing my parents to leave, and I think she should love me enough to stay with me and help me until I can arrange a place for them to go. Which of us is right?
A WORRIED HUSBAND.

Answer:
I think you are right. Absolutely. And that your wife is showing herself up to be so mean and small-minded and selfish, and displaying so little affection for you that I wonder that you even want her to come back.

As I have said many times before in this column, I am strongly opposed to parents going to live with their married children. It almost invariably breeds trouble. No house was ever built large enough for two families, and it is easier for the lion and the lamb to lie down together than for in-laws not to get on each other's nerves when they are brought in daily contact with each other's ways and peculiarities.

Sometimes Necessary

But when circumstances arise, as they often do in these times of depression, when the old people have to take shelter with the young people because there is not money enough to support separate homes, it is up to both parties to be good enough sports to make the best of the situation, and not make a bad matter worse by acting like martyrs about it, or turning quitters.

Well, may you ask your wife, when she refuses to stay under the same roof with your parents, what she expects you to do when they turned to you for help? They were homeless and penniless. Did she expect you to throw them out to starve and perish of exposure? They had worked and sacrificed to take care of you in your helpless childhood. Did she want you to fail them in their helpless age?

And what sort of a man does she think you are if you would turn your back on your father and mother in their hour of need?

Does she think she can depend on a man who has no sense of responsibility to his parents? Does she think she can trust a man to be faithful to her who is disloyal to the mother who bore him?

Perhaps if she will try to answer these questions to her own conscience, she will have some sympathy and understanding of your position when you are torn in two by conflicting duties.

Should be Fair

Taking it by and large, men show far more generosity and nobility of soul in meeting the in-law problem than women do, as is proven by the fact that many more men support their wives' parents than their own. When the old home is broken up, Father and Mother almost invariably go to live with a daughter, and daughter's husband makes the old man or woman welcome. But far otherwise is it if husband brings his father or mother home with him. There are icebergs on the mat for husbands' parents.

Also, although the husband supports the home, it is the wife's family who have the run of it, while the husband's family seldom feel free to go to their son's house unless they are especially invited. Maybe that is life. Anyway, it is women.

Pious Flirtation Points to Danger

Dear Miss Dix—I am a man nearly 50. Recently I met a young woman whom I am attempting to help because the right way of life. My wife seriously objects to my interest in her, although she is only a little older than our child. I have endeavored to show my wife that our friendship is wholesome and that this girl is worth the hours I spend about this practice she goes into a rage and informs me that she has a perfect right to open my letters because what is mine is also hers. I have no secrets to hide, but I feel that I have a right to my own mail and that it is my own personal property. How about it?

E. F. H.

No Right to Open Husband's Mail

Dear Dorothy Dix—My wife insists on opening all of my mail—personal, confidential, bills and whatnot. Every time I berate her about this practice she goes into a rage and informs me that she has a perfect right to open my letters because what is mine is also hers. I have no secrets to hide, but I feel that I have a right to my own mail and that it is my own personal property. How about it?
E. F. H.

A wife has no more right to open her husband's mail than a stranger has. But a lot of women do not recognize this. Whether it is because of their suspicions, nobody knows. But if a man is afflicted with one of these Polly Prys, there is nothing he can do about it, except have his mail sent to his business office, or get a locked box at the postoffice.

Charge Beyond the Bar is the Billiard Room

The building faces north, toward the parade ground, the distant barracks and, beyond that, the even more distant stables. The east wing overlooks a row of officers' quarters and the park and playground which stretches behind them for perhaps a quarter of a mile to the lake and the officers' beach. The mess hall and the kitchen regions are on the ground floor of this wing. Above them, and above the central structure, the bachelors have their rooms. The west wing is principally for guests.

The guests are mostly army, too. Officers on leave from Middle Western posts, with their wives and families, spending two weeks or a month at the lake shore, living in furnished suites of two rooms and bath, taking their meals in the bachelors' mess. Wives of officers on duty at the post send their overflow guests to the club. Visiting inspectors, officers en route from station to station, may stop there overnight. The accommodations are not inexpensive, which is one reason, perhaps, why during this last fortnight in August I was the only paying guest.

The guest wing is approached from the lounge by a narrow corridor behind the bar and the billiard room, but it has its own doors.

Casual Slaughters

By Virginia Hanson

YESTERDAY: Immerman, the waiter, seems agitated at the table conversation. After lunch, Felicia drives to Chicago to do some shopping and Kay goes to the Post Exchange. Immerman is there buying a regimental insignia like the one connected with the first robbery.

Chapter Five
One Paying Guest
I wanted to tell Adam the incident but two second lieutenants found me first and established themselves firmly and dutifully at my side, addressing their attentions so obviously to the major's girl that I felt about eighty instead of twenty-four. When Colonel Pennant arrived they sprang to their feet and moved chairs and carried drinks, then effaced themselves like well-bred children, haled with knowledge of duty well done.

The girls, Colonel Pennant explained, were still in the city. "You couldn't get them to leave until the stores close," he went on cheerfully. "I long ago gave up trying to understand the feminine lust for shopping. And when you consider that they have the extra thrill of helping choose a trousseau, I shall be surprised if they don't get locked in."

"Felicia is in town, too," I said. I had yielded to his insistence and let him order a glass of sherry for me. I looked at him over it and thought again what an attractive person he was. "I feel a little impertinent being here in bachelor quarters without a chaperone. I don't believe I've thanked you and Mrs. Pennant for being so nice about letting me have rooms here. I assure you I won't abuse the privilege." He looked slightly shocked. "You hand in tomorrow's column."

Bolero Ensemble

BY ANNE ADAMS

There's a gracious "leading lady" look about this frock and bolero, Pattern 4442 by Anne Adams. You'll start off the fall season by wearing the ensemble, with the tailored, long-sleeved bolero, as a street outfit. Later, you'll wear the dress alone under your coat. Just see those well-balanced lines! The front skirt panel gives slim flattery. The simple bodice is shirred or gathered at the shoulders and darted above the waist to keep its easy fullness in place. A row of tiny buttons from the V-neck to the waist creates nice up-and-down lines. A gay idea is to contrast the rounded revers of the jacket to match the dress. Let the Sewing Instructor help you finish quickly.

Pattern 4442 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 dress, takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric. Bolero, 1 1/2 yards.

Send your order to Appleton Post-Crescent Pattern Department, 243 West 17th St., New York, N. Y. Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

charge. Beyond the bar is the billiard room.

The building faces north, toward the parade ground, the distant barracks and, beyond that, the even more distant stables. The east wing overlooks a row of officers' quarters and the park and playground which stretches behind them for perhaps a quarter of a mile to the lake and the officers' beach. The mess hall and the kitchen regions are on the ground floor of this wing. Above them, and above the central structure, the bachelors have their rooms. The west wing is principally for guests.

The guests are mostly army, too. Officers on leave from Middle Western posts, with their wives and families, spending two weeks or a month at the lake shore, living in furnished suites of two rooms and bath, taking their meals in the bachelors' mess. Wives of officers on duty at the post send their overflow guests to the club. Visiting inspectors, officers en route from station to station, may stop there overnight. The accommodations are not inexpensive, which is one reason, perhaps, why during this last fortnight in August I was the only paying guest.

The guest wing is approached from the lounge by a narrow corridor behind the bar and the billiard room, but it has its own doors.

Johnson Plays New Deal Use Of War for Political Ends

Editor's note: The daily column by General Hugh S. Johnson is being substituted for Raymond Clapper's column while Mr. Clapper is on vacation.

BY HUGH S. JOHNSON

Colorado Springs—Colorado Springs isn't exactly the place a columnist would expect to come to get the daily gist of gossip and opinions out of which the columns are made, unless he were trying to worm something out of Wendell Willkie; and for me that is taboo. For that reason, I hesitated to get so far away from the great Washington whispering gallery.

It was all wrong. I never heard so much grapevine bunk-casting in any single day. It probably results from the presence of a presidential candidate, although he listens to little of it and seems to be affected by none.

The most frequent story is that the president is going to try to blanket Mr. Willkie's acceptance speech by a well-timed bombshell—a startling announcement about the war and a strong insistence that congress promptly authorize the sale of 50 of our destroyers to Great Britain. This one looks authentic. It has partial confirmation in the news. Its source is usually well informed. More persuasive still, it is 100 per cent Roosevelt stuff.

It is a shame to play politics with this war, but it is being done. It has been done since long before the pre-convention campaign started. Part of it can't be avoided, but stunts like this can. The "ins" have all the advantage over the "outs" in this dangerous game because they are running the relations that may lead to war. Right up to the moment this kind of juggling with dynamite bombs brings catastrophe they can say that any criticism of their course is unpatriotic disunity.

I expect that Mr. Roosevelt will do exactly what is predicted in this rumor, but I am not so sure that he can get away with it without a resounding rebuff from congress and the country. I am even less sure that it will have any effect in blanketing Mr. Willkie's speech. It may do just the reverse and highlight and emphasize it.

Shrewd thrusts at Mr. Willkie haven't worked very well to date. He seems to be quite as skillful as the old fencing maestro in the White House. If I were advising my distinguished former associate, I would suggest that he lay off the in-fighting with the jovial Hoosier porcupine and stick to long-range principle that "you can't beat four billion dollars"—now amended by substituting "ten" for the word "four."

Sinister Situation Brewing in Far East

The second rumor, from other information, to which I gave serious attention, is that there is a very sinister situation brewing in the Far East. Of course, there is nothing new about that in general, but this is more specific. It is that Japan is going to move in promptly on both Indo-China and the Dutch East Indies. It seems a little fuzzy whether "moving in" means actual naval and military occupation or some bludgeoned economic concession. That may give them control of the output of vital supplies of petroleum, tin, rubber and food products. The latter would seem easier, quite as effective and less dangerous for Japan.

That story is serious enough and credible enough, but what goes with it is even more serious, if not so credible. It is that if this move develops, this government is going to move our navy into far eastern waters and threaten to stop Japan's action by force of arms—war.

Such, as is well known to his friends, is Mr. Stimson's policy. Secretary Hull is said to have swallowed it whole. From the viewpoint of the peace, safety and welfare of the United States it would be absolute lunacy, but even the threat of such a situation is thought to be great New Deal politics in a presidential year. I wonder. I wonder if the country isn't getting sick to death of sick politics and about ready to say, "Darn such politics and professional politicians. Let's get rid of the whole caboodle and elect a man whose language we understand and whose words we can believe."

Jap Missionary Will Appear at Waupaca

Waupaca—Dr. Hajime Inadomi, Japanese missionary, will be in the city Sunday where he will address audiences at Our Saviour's Lutheran church both morning and evening. Although born in Japan, he was educated in a Danish Lutheran mission and following his graduation from high school he came to America where he was later ordained in Racine in 1922. For the last 18 years he has been in Japan as principle of a Lutheran middle school with an enrollment of 800 boys.

His present tour through America has been arranged by the Lutheran league of the United Danish Lutheran church. His tour has included almost every congregation of the synod in America. He will leave shortly for his home in Japan.

Simple Anemia (deficient quality of the blood) develops so gradually, in many people, that they realize what is the matter. It is about enough blood to carry a plentiful supply of oxygen and other essential materials, your blood slowly starves your body into an anemic state. The physical weakness of such a body is lowered, making it more susceptible to disease. Fortunately, there is a simple way to fight simple Anemia—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They contain iron which the hemoglobin in your red blood cells must have to carry vital, life-giving oxygen and other essential materials from your lungs to every part of your body. If you look pale, always feel tired, are easily upset and your general run-down, try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Don't let simple Anemia get a strong hold on you. Two Clintonville Couples Celebrate Golden Weddings

The golden wedding anniversaries of two prominent Clintonville couples, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Kratzke and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Christanson, were celebrated Wednesday afternoon at the Parkview hotel in Clintonville. The event was arranged by the Clintonville chapter of War Mothers, of which both women are members. As guests for the event, members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary were invited. Mrs. Kratzke is a member of both organizations.

The afternoon was spent informally and a supper was served to 32 guests. The tables were decorated with garden flowers and both honored couples were presented with large bouquets. The birthday anniversaries of six of the War Mothers which occur in August also were celebrated at this meeting. They were Mrs. Mathilda Weiland, Mrs. A. W. Parfitt, Mrs. Hans Halla, Mrs. Anton Muthig, Mrs. Jennie Clemons and Mrs. Cora Fisher. Present for the occasion was Mrs. Fred Koch, a member of the Clintonville group, who has spent the last several years in the west. Arrangements for the party were made by Mrs. John Needham, Mrs. Clemons and Mrs. Celia Hamilton, president of the War Mothers chapter.

Kohler Firm Files Protest

Company Doesn't Like Use of 1936-39 Period in Proposed New Tax

Washington—Representative Hawks (R-Wis.) laid before the house and senate ways and means committees this week a protest of the Kohler company, Kohler, Wis., against using the years 1936 to 1939, inclusive, as a base period for application of proposed excess profits taxes.

Company officials contended, Hawks declared, that their firm, selling plumbing supplies, would be permitted only an earning of 49 percent before the tax would apply on that basis.

The congressman said this was "ridiculous" and called attention to the company's recommendation that a flat earning of 10 percent be permitted before the tax comes in to play.

Company representatives also emphasized, Hawks said the poor earnings position of durable goods industry in the last ten years, asserting it was unfair to assume that the years 1936-39 were normal income years for companies in various businesses.

The dependence of the Kohler company on farm residence building during 1931-35 also was stressed by company representatives, who asserted that during that time the firm had suffered losses, adding that the bureau of labor statistics use 1926 as a normal year.

Hawks said the excess profits tax proposal had not been placed in the form of a bill, but that the house committee was considering a proposal advanced by the treasury department.

Excess Profits Tax Plan Given Support

Washington—The house ways and means committee today voted to permit corporations to use the best three out of a four-year, 1936-39, base period in figuring their excess profits taxes.

The decision was conditioned on whether the proposal would cause undue delay in the preparation of the proposed taxing measure, which in addition to the excess profits tax would include a defense plant amortization plan and repeal of the Vinson-Trammell act's limitation on the profits from manufacture of warships and airplanes.

Chairman Doughton (D-N.C.) announced that several other possible changes were discussed during a lengthy committee session, but no other decisions were reached.

STOP FOR ARTERIALS

NEW YORK—(P)—New York's drink-and-dance belt, from side street cabarets to the elite meeting places of cafe society, got a jolt today from Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine, who ordered fingerprinting of virtually all persons connected with night clubs.

The rigid regulations were the commissioner's answer to complaints of racketeering in night life. They provide for the issuance of identification cards—to be carried at all times—by waiters, hat check girls, hostesses and any singer, bandman or other entertainer employed more than 30 days in one spot.

About 1,200 hot spots are covered by the new regulations, which were designed to make it difficult for gangsters to take in profits behind front men.

Explains Plan For Assuring Better Wiring

Appleton Electrical League Hears Outline Of Builders' Service

The Appleton Electrical League last night heard an explanation of the adequate wiring certification plan by A. E. Schanuel, field representative for the National Adequate Wiring Bureau.

About 40 electrical contractors and wire men gathered at the Wisconsin Michigan Power company to hear Schanuel describe the system through which advice and assistance on the wiring of homes would be given to prospective home builders and those financing the building. The service is based on a national standard for the installation of wiring systems in dwellings.

Schanuel pointed out that "about 90 per cent of all homes have wiring systems that are inadequate for the services demanded; this is due to the haphazard methods used in installing." By making expert advice and information available to home builders and home financing agencies, proper wiring can be assured.

Officers of the Appleton Electrical league are John F. Wochler, president; Arthur Schneider, vice president; Howard Ebberhardt, secretary; William De Lain, sergeant-at-arms; and Ross E. Williams, Clarence Schultz, Louis Luebke, Fred Kostzke, and Robert Fahrnkru, members of the executive committee.

London—(P)—Disclosing to the house of commons that "I have some unsatisfactory news," Prime Minister Winston Churchill said today a "small British holding force" had been driven back by "greatly superior Italian forces" from its position northeast of Hargeisa in British Somaliland.

"As operations are still in progress I cannot say any more, but I shall be dealing generally with the eastern situation in my statement next week," Churchill said.

Churchill warned that "the danger of invasion has by no means passed away," although "we are very much stronger than we were in May."

He spoke on the operations of a secret anti-fifth column committee. Churchill is to give the house a general war review in a public session next Tuesday. The house then is to adjourn on Thursday until Sept. 5.

Lawrence Says Book Sale Is Law Violation

Declares Failure to Press Charges Mark
Against New Deal

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington — The same department of justice which is excusing its failure to prosecute those Democratic politicians responsible for selling campaign books — the contention being that the purchasers and not the sellers are violating the Hatch law — is engaged in another important piece of litigation before the supreme court, insisting that the seller and the buyer are jointly liable.

The conspiracy statute of the United States which seems to have been overlooked by the department of justice in connection with violations of the Hatch act says: "If two or more persons conspire to commit any offense against the United States . . . and one or more of such parties do any act to effect the object of the conspiracy, each of the parties to such conspiracy shall be fined not more than $10,000, or imprisoned not more than two years, or both."

In a case to be argued before the supreme court of the United States this autumn, the department of justice is contending that "one who sells materials with knowledge that such materials will be used in the production of illicit distilled spirits pursuant to a conspiracy to violate the internal revenues may properly be convicted as a co-conspirator."

The department of justice in taking this position declares it is supported by decisions in the following circuit courts of appeals: ninth circuit; seventh circuit; sixth circuit; first circuit; eighth circuit. Only two circuits seem to be contrary.

Department Position

The department's brief is signed by Francis Biddle, solicitor general. In this case, moreover, the goods themselves are innocent. The department takes the position that a landlord "may be held as an accessory or a conspirator if he fails to evict a lessee after he has acquired knowledge that the lessee is using the leased premises for the operation of illicit stills or the illegal sale of liquor."

Under the Hatch law, it is illegal for the citizen or corporations to purchase campaign books or advertising space therein, but the attorney general has said that it is not illegal for the books to be sold, but only to be bought. Yet, in the case of a building occupied by a tenant who violates the law, when the knowledge comes to the landlord concerning illegal use he is in duty bound to evict the tenant or become subject to penalty under the conspiracy statutes.

The analogy between these instances is clear. Indeed, back in the days of the Volstead law, there were several prosecutions in which the seller was regarded as a conspirator along with the buyer of forbidden beverages of alcoholic content. The weight of authority in these cases appears to be that the seller is guilty of conspiracy when he sells any article, the purchase of which is prohibited by law.

One of the excuses given by the Democratic high command is that the sales were made before the Hatch law was signed, but the Federal Corrupt Practices act, which forbids any contributions direct or indirect by corporations to a political party, has been on the statute books since 1909, and it would appear that those who issued the Democratic campaign book conspired to bring about violations of the Federal Corrupt Practices law.

Sadistic View
No such indifference to alleged law violation is permitted by the department of justice where business men generally are concerned. Dozens of reputable individuals engaged in large-scale operations of industry are today being harassed by the same department with criminal indictments and other criminal proceedings on purely technical grounds where marketing practices of an economic character can be defended under the complexity of decisions of the supreme court. So sadistic is the view of the department of justice that it will not allow these economic problems to be settled by civil suits, but there must needs be a public scandalizing of men who have tried to follow the court precedents in good faith.

But here, in the case of the sale

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN

Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headache and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes show there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

of the Democratic campaign books to corporations, is no technically at all, but a plain instance of violation of a law for which criminal penalties alone are provided. In the administration of President Coolidge when cabinet officers were found to have misused public power in connection with the Teapot Dome scandal, a Republican chief executive did not hesitate to appoint special prosecutors and bring about the trial of persons high in his own political party. President Roosevelt can find eminent legal counsel to appoint so as not to embarrass the department of justice which evidently is unwilling to proceed against high Democratic party officials.

In Washington one hears much prating about Democracy and yet it was precisely this type of intrigue and flagrant indifference to law which led to the downfall of the French Republic in the present war. The New Deal has been regarded as virtuous by many millions of voters, who now will begin to ask whether they must believe the cries of the anti-New Dealers that neither ethics nor morality prevail in high places under the Democratic administration. The failure to prosecute for violations of the Federal Corrupt Practices act and under the conspiracy statutes will mean a black mark in the New Deal record whereas immediate filing of the evidence before a grand jury will restore faith in the integrity of Democratic government under the party system.

Class C Landing Field Is Choice Of County Board

Purchase of Land for Airport Deferred for Further Investigation

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau
Oshkosh—The Winnebago county board Wednesday voted 32 to 2 to establish a class C airport in the county and instructed the aviation committee to secure options on an airport site.

Before the vote was taken, the board eliminated a clause in the resolution setting up a fund of $75,000 to buy the Oshkosh Airport and adjacent land. The change leaves the selection of a site open.

Also in the resolution was the specification that the airport committee apply immediately to secure federal funds to develop a Class C landing field and also that the committee submit all options on land to the board in November.

The committee reported Tuesday that a $210,000 WPA application has been filed at Madison to develop an airport.

Oppose Purchase
Three Neenah-Menasha men appeared before the board Wednesday to oppose the purchase of the Oshkosh Airport. Inc. Wilbur Sparks, Ernest Rhodes and Elmer Radtke all told supervisors that the people at the north end of the county definitely are opposed to location of the airport in Oshkosh.

Tuesday Mayor Edwin Kalfas, Neenah, opposed the port before the board.

Radtke, secretary of the Neenah Chamber of Commerce, told the board that there are several sites available for an airport between Oshkosh and Neenah and that the sites could be purchased at less than the price asked for the Oshkosh Airport, Inc. He said that if the aviation committee is given an extension of time to investigate other airport sites, both Neenah and Menasha will cooperate.

Telegrams signed by citizens and organizations from Neenah and Menasha were received by county areas Wednesday afternoon. The telegrams were all the same and read: "Supervisors of Neenah-Menasha: Present airport plans not favorable to Neenah-Menasha. Give careful consideration."

Warms of Hysteria
Chief opponent to the county's purchase of an airport was Vice Chairman Robert M. Heckner, Menasha supervisor, who told the county board that a long line of defunct private airports in the Fox River valley is evidence of how great airport hysteria is in this locality. Speaking on civilian pilot training in the county, Heckner warned the board against embarking on a "spending spree" because of the war hysteria that has apparently possessed the entire nation.

Proponents for postponement of any action until the November session were supervisors Earl Hughes, town of Neenah, Robert Heckner, James Howley, and E. G. Sonnenberg, Menasha.

Supervisor Heckner moved that the matter of purchasing an airport be tabled until the November session but the motion was voted down by a majority vote.

Supervisor Sonnenberg advised the board to postpone action until November to allow the federal government time to give its answer concerning county WPA applications for airport aid.

Supervisor Hughes suggested that action be deferred until next November while the aviation committee is investigating possible airport sites north of Oshkosh. He said the board should not be stampeded into purchasing the Oshkosh Airport, Inc., like it was on some of the other county projects.

Challenges Board
A challenge by James Howley, supervisor from Menasha, was made to any member of the aviation committee to definitely state for an airport north of Oshkosh. He told the board that the aviation committee has had the Oshkosh Airport site "on its mind since the beginning" and has not made a sincere search for other possible sites.

The aviation committee was instructed to call a special meeting of the board just as soon as it has completed gathering data on the county airport.

Although the aviation committee was not granted the $75,000.00 Airport fund, Wednesday, it still has $1,000.00 at its disposal for taking up options on land for an airport.

The board voted to adjourn to November.

Employment Office Gets Occupational Dictionary, Codes

Neenah—The new occupational dictionary and the occupational codes devised to accompany it have been received at the Twin City employment office, according to Harry Gates, manager of the local office of the Wisconsin State Employment Service.

Mr. Gates and Miss Eda Gruetzmacher of the women's division attended a 4-day meeting in Appleton recently where they received instructions relative to the introduction and use of the new system. Mr. Gates now is training the local staff in the use of the dictionary and codes.

The occupational dictionary has been in preparation for several years. It includes definition and classification of 29,744 job titles and alternate job titles. American industries cooperated in producing the volume.

"This dictionary and code is being installed in every employment office in Wisconsin and in the employment services of every state in the union," Mr. Gates said. "When installation is complete, all employment offices throughout the entire United States will have a uniform coding system and uniform definition of jobs. This will greatly facilitate the classification of job applicants and the filling of job orders."

"It is especially important that we have a uniform system at this time," Mr. Gates concluded, "because as the national defense program gets under way, labor shortages will develop in many parts of our country. The public employment service, with the occupational dictionary and uniform codes, will be able to locate qualified workers in other parts of the country for those occupations for which no workers are available locally. It will eliminate the possibility of a bottleneck in the defense program because of labor shortages when, in fact, no such shortages exist."

Will Conduct Funeral

Menasha—The Rev. A. A. Chambers, rector of St. Thomas Episcopal church, will conduct the funeral services of Mrs. William MacNaughton at the Spikes and McDonald Funeral home in Oshkosh Friday afternoon in the absence of the Rev. William R. Otto, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, Oshkosh.

Neenah—Dr. Hajime Inadomi, native missionary leader who came to the United States in recent months for an extensive speaking tour at the invitation of the Lutheran young people of America, will speak at 10:45 Sunday morning in Our Saviour's English Lutheran church.

Dr. Inadomi, outstanding Lutheran leader in Japan, who will be in this country until December, is principal of the Kyushu Gakuin Boys' school in Japan. He was born in 1893 in Kurume, the son of an old Samurai family. When he was seven years old, he was brought by his father to a Danish missionary. Seven years later the youngster was baptized in the Christian faith. He was educated in Lutheran schools and when he returned to this country recently, he was awarded a doctor of divinity degree by Roanoke college in Virginia in recognition of his religious service in Japan. Dr. Inadomi is a national committeeman of the Japanese Y. M. C. A. The public is welcome to attend the morning lecture in the Neenah church.

Dr. Inadomi will speak at Waukegan at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon and again at 7:30 Sunday evening.

Two Officers Are Promoted

Major Dan Hardt is Lieutenant Colonel; Name Draheim Major

Neenah—Twenty years of service in the Wisconsin National guard has been rewarded by promotion of two Neenah officers, Dan A. Hardt and William A. Draheim. Major Hardt has been promoted to lieutenant colonel and assigned as executive officer and second-in-command of the 128th Infantry regiment. Captain Draheim has been promoted to major and assigned as plans and training officer for the 127th Infantry. Both appointments are effective as of Aug. 10, according to a statement from the adjutant general's office at Madison.

Both officers enlisted in the Wisconsin guard in 1920. Hardt served as corporal, sergeant, first sergeant, second lieutenant, first lieutenant and finally as captain company commander for five years of what is now Company I. In February, 1936, he led all captains of the 64th Infantry brigade in a competitive examination and was promoted to a major and was assigned to the 128th Infantry where he has served since as battalion commander and regimental plans and training officer.

Draheim, who is a World War veteran, enlisted in the local unit of the Wisconsin guard in 1920 and subsequently was commissioned as first lieutenant and placed in command of Headquarters company, First battalion, 127th Infantry. In 1930 he was promoted to captain and since then has served as regimental adjutant and assistant plans and training officer.

The two local officers are on duty with their regiments at the present time, participating in the Second army maneuvers now in progress in the Camp McCoy area near Sparta where approximately 65,000 regular army and national guard enlisted and commissioned personnel have been assembled for the largest peace-time maneuver in the nation's history.

Name Winners In Yacht Club Summer Races

Neenah—Seven winners in the various classes of the championship series of the Neenah Nodaway Yacht club have been announced. Competition in most classes was extremely close with final standings in several classes depending on last week's races.

The post-season series of races will begin Saturday with a series of five scheduled. In addition to one race Saturday, races will be held Aug. 24 and 31 and Sept. 1 and 2.

Winner in A class by a substantial margin was Jim Kimberly's Phantom III with five firsts and two seconds in seven starts. These places gave him a point standing of 20.1 compared with 19 for Jack Kimberly's Sea Gull in second place. Third place went to S. F. Shattuck's Bilgewater and fourth to Shattuck's Onaway.

Bob Sage took class E honors with three firsts, four seconds, two thirds and a fourth for an average of 19.2. Behind him were Bill Gilbert's We Will Too, Joseph Sensenbrenner's Jontop Too, Nick Gilbert's Mibs and Mowry Smith's You Wait. Only three hundredths of a point separated the third and fourth place winners.

In class C Dick Thicken's captured the championship trophy by virtue of a win in the last race. Brannan Rendlein's Coeur de Lion was second.

Henry Is Chairman Of Roberts Campaign

Milwaukee—(P)—Campaign headquarters of Chester G. Roberts announced today that Robert K. Henry had accepted chairmanship of the Roberts For State Treasurer club.

Robert, a Milwaukee insurance man, is a candidate for the Republican nomination.

Henry served two terms as state treasurer, being elected as a Democrat. He was a leader in the coalition movement two years ago, when he ran for governor, and later joined the Republican party.

"I have unlimited confidence in Roberts and intend to work hard for his election," Henry said at his home in Jefferson. "I will make several talks in his behalf throughout the state and on the radio. His nomination will do a lot for the party and give it a far more formidable ticket than it otherwise would present."

Gets More Power

Washington—(P)—Federal communications commission today authorized Radio Station WTAQ, Green Bay, Wis., to increase power from 1 kilowatt night, 5 kilowatts day to 5 kilowatts day and night.

by virtue of two firsts, one scored in the last race.

Piling up five consecutive firsts in the last five races, John Boon took the cup competition going away. Bernie Smith, who was a steady performer in first and second place all season, took second honors with Dorothy Ridgeway in third and Russ Spoor fourth.

Gerry Felton took the national trophy by scoring six firsts and two seconds in nine starts. Rudy Lotz was second with Sun Flower while Russ Johnson was third with Blitzkrieg. Emmett Janda, the only eligible open class boat, took that trophy.

The scoring system used in computing the final standings rates each boat on its average finishing place allowing 20 points for first, 18 for second, 17 for third, and so on down to last. In addition a bonus of one-tenth point is allowed for every race finished.

Movie Land Its People and Products

NEW PORTRAIT—A new portrait of Claudette Colbert who plays an Eastern school teacher who visits a frontier oil town and finds action and romance. Miss Colbert is co-starred in "Boom Town" with Clark Gable/Spencer Tracy and Hedy Lamarr.

By Jimmie Fidler

Hollywood—Movie big-wigs solemnly assure us that picture production is a gamble because of the public's "constantly changing entertainment tastes."

That speech, like the politician's "mandate of my constituents," is baloney dished out to alibi mistakes. Entertainment tastes are exactly the same today as they were when they were in vogue.

Fidler Hollywood wore diapers! Let's examine box office records:

Today's biggest hit is "Gone With the Wind"—a parallel for 1915's sensational "Birth of a Nation." "Virginia City" contains exactly the same ingredients that made "The Covered Wagon," produced in 1923, a movie gold mine. Why be astonished at the success of "The Fighting 69th"? True, it's not artistically perfect, but neither was its 1925 prototype, "The Big Parade," which earned millions. "Waterloo Bridge" in 1931, was a best seller. So is "Waterloo Bridge" in 1940. The sixteen years that elapsed between the first "Sea Hawk" and the current version didn't change public tastes enough to keep both pictures from packing 'em in. And the "woman appeal" that made "Stella Dallas" click in 1925, is making "Rebecca," in every way comparable, a box office leader today.

For final proof, consider the lowly westerns. For thirty years, Hollywood's been grinding them out with no attempt to change the formula—and for thirty years they've been paying a dependable profit.

Any producer who doesn't know, by now, what the public wants, must find trouble in adding two and two—and getting four.

IDOL CHATTER: Maybe we wouldn't need prescription if someone could just persuade Mae West to act as recruiting sergeant. Muse, if stars are worth $5000 a week because they guarantee picture profits, how come so many star-studded epics end in the red? Babe Hardy is one actor who keeps his screen future in front of him. In-a-word description of Cesar Romero: Dancesome. One nice thing about the war—it's justified all those years Joan Crawford spent learning to knit. Peas-in-a-pod: Leon Errol and Sir Cedric Hardwicke, sans makeup. Little Ryan, of The Smoosies, is worried about a producer pal—each night the poor fellow previews his next night's dream. Add odd hobbies: Virginia Bruce's collection of famous horses' shoes.

SEVEN YEARS AGO IN HOLLYWOOD: Eleanor Boardman, just divorced from King Vidor, announced her engagement to Director Harry D'Arrest. Jean Harlow surprised Hollywood by yumatting with cameraman Hal Rosson. . . . Claire Windsor was assessed $75,000 in an alienation of affections suit filed by the former wife of hubby Alfred C. Wisconsin Health

BY DR. CORNELIUS A. HARPER, State Health Officer

Wisconsin is now in its third year of a stepped-up program for the conquest of venereal diseases, and federal reports show our state to be among the leaders in this fight.

State reports for May showed Wisconsin second only to Minnesota in low incidence of early syphilis, fourth among the states in low incidence of syphilis of all types, and fourth also in low incidence of gonorrhea.

Chief reason for this enviable standing among the states probably is that Wisconsin undertook venereal disease control back in 1915, at a time when people and newspapers alike felt the subject too hideous to mention, an attitude which fostered ignorance and made the inroads of these ailments all the easier.

Wisconsin's early efforts against the venereal diseases were largely educational in nature, but were gradually expanded to include control through state clinical facilities for the treatment of indigent cases.

Today there are 15 venereal disease clinics administered by the state. They are located at convenient population centers throughout Wisconsin, and provide treatment for those who are unable to pay for it.

The public's attitude toward the venereal diseases is steadily becoming more enlightened, and our public press is now leading the way with news reports and editorials on this once taboo subject.

Our eugenics law requiring proof of freedom from communicable syphilis on the part of both bride and groom offers assurance that congenital syphilis will steadily diminish in Wisconsin.

Blatz Managers Meet

Managers of Wisconsin district branches of Blatz Brewing company attended a sales meeting yesterday at Conway hotel, with Milwaukee officials in charge. About 20 attended, with Thomas McLaughlin, Appleton branch manager, in charge of arrangements.

tioned L.A. courts to make his screen name, Gary, legal. . . . Sally Rand was given a jail sentence when a Chicago judge decided her World's Fair fan dance was "indecent." . . . Pola Negri and Harold F. McCormick, Chicago millionaire, were a romantic headline.

CUFF NOTES: The Marx Brothers, in family convalesce, have chosen a new name for Groucho's tennis son—he'll be known as "Smacko." . . . Charles Ruggles' drunk portrayal in "Maryland" must have been a gem of realism—he's received a trade from an Eastern W.C.T.U. chapter, accusing him of corrupting American youth.

Health Headquarters Set Up at Seymour Fair

Miss Marie Klein, Outagamie county nurse, today completed setting up her headquarters for the Seymour fair which opens Friday. Health examinations for county youths planning to attend the state junior fair camp will be conducted at the health headquarters at the Seymour fair grounds from 1 to 3 o'clock Friday afternoon by a physician. Everyone attending the junior fair camp must present his examination certificate for admittance.

140 Mothers Attend Clinics in Trailer

A total of 140 mothers attended the maternity and child health care clinics held in a special health trailer of the Bureau of Maternal and Child Health of the state board of health last week, according to a report of Miss Marie Klein, Outagamie county nurse. The trailer made stops in Freedom, Little Chute, Kimberly, Greenville, Medina, Stephenville, Binghamton, Nichols and Bear Creek.

Atlantic "Spawning Ground"
Yesterday we spoke of eels which spend all their lives in the ocean. Most kinds, however, swim to fresh water after hatching in the ocean. In this respect, they have habits which are opposite to those of salmon. Salmon hatch in fresh water, then go to the sea.

Scores of rivers along the Atlantic coast of this continent have eels which sooner or later will swim out to the ocean. For the most part they will go to the region between the West Indies and the Bermuda islands. That is the great "spawning ground" of the eel family.

Rivers of the British Isles and of the continent of Europe also provide eels which swim into the Atlantic. Vast numbers of them head southward and go to the very same spawning ground used by the eels of North America!

What a wonder it is! Millions of eels from both sides of the Atlantic go to the same region when it is time to lay their eggs!

Not all Atlantic eels go there, but careful tests have shown that the area between the Bermudas and the West Indies is the favorite place. What memory is it that brings this about year after year?

Reaching the spawning grounds, the female eel lay eggs in water about half a mile deep. One fish may lay from 5,000,000 to 15,000,000 eggs. If only one egg in a thousand hatched out, the number of young eels would be great.

The new-hatched eel does not look like its parents. It has a shape very much like the leaf of an elm tree. It is thin, and its body is transparent. If a person laid a baby eel, or "glass fish," over a printed page, he could read the print through the body.

Some "glass fish" start swimming for Europe. Others go toward the coast of the United States or Canada. The journeys take from two to three years.

Providential

Michigan City, Ind.—(4)—Outside Central fire station it was raining hard when the telephone rang.

"There's a grass fire on the east side," a woman complained. "Can you come and put it out?"

"A grass fire?" the switchboard operator countered. "Why, its pouring here!"

"Just a minute," said the woman. "I think it's sprinkling here now."

"I mean, it's pouring."

So the firemen did not have to put out the grass fire.

Spencer Scott Wins Feature Race at Goshen

Fred Egan Realizes His Prediction Made At Last Year's Event

BY ORLO ROBERTSON

Goshen, N. Y., (AP)—A prediction made a year ago by a former Des Moines hot hop came true yesterday.

As Peter Asta won the 1939 Hambletonian, Fred Egan, now nearing the 60-year mark, stood at the head of the stretch and told all that cared to listen that he would be out there next year receiving honors for winning the world's premier trotting classic.

Little consideration was given his remarks even though the Lexington, Ky., veteran long had ranked as one of the smartest drivers and trainers in the sport. He was known as the hard luck guy of the Hambletonian, having finished in the money in 10 of the 12 in which he had a horse and barely missing out when Brown Berry stumbled while leading in the deciding heat in 1933.

Then, too, the horse with which he expected to win, Spencer Scott, had shown nothing up to that time, but yesterday Egan proved his statement when he drove Spencer to straight heat victory for C. W. Phelps of Greenwich, Conn., before some 30,000 fans at Good Time park.

Spencer Scott was the people's choice and he justified that honor by stepping the first mile in 2:02, only a half-second off Shirley Hanover's Hambletonian record, and the second in 2:03 to win the purse of $23,077. Remus, owned by Paul Bowser of Boston, Bill Dickerson of Goshen, N. Y., and trainer-driver Harry Short of Columbus, O., and Dunbar Botwick's Kuno of Westbury, L. I., finished second and third, respectively, in both dashes. "I had all the luck in the world," said Egan who had driven such famous horses as Van Sandt, 2:00 and Braden Direct, 2:01, the quiet Kentuckian's first great horse.

Game Called
Clintonville—A Northern State league game between the Truckers and Manitowoc was called at 0-0 in the fourth inning because of rain here last night.

Al Smith Gives One Hit As Indians Win

By The Associated Press

Al Smith pitched his league-leading Cleveland Indians teammates to a one-hit 4 to 0 victory over the Chicago White Sox last night before 59,068 Cleveland fans, the largest night crowd of the major league season.

Only four Sox got on base, two by errors, as the Indians clung to their two-game American league margin over the Detroit Tigers.

Roy Weatherly, Cleveland center fielder, led the Indian attack on pitcher Edgar Smith, piling a homer with one aboard in the third inning after singling home another run in the first.

Jimmy Webb's single in the third inning cost Al Smith a perfect game. He fanned four and walked only one to hang up his 13th victory against five defeats.

The Licking sent the White Sox back into the second division.

Hubbell, Ott Star

In the National league, King Carl Hubbell rung up a victory of the dime novel variety. While old Carl was elbowing his way to a 5-hit, 13-inning 1-0 victory over the Boston Bees, the New York Giants' old Met Ott, who had been benched for failure to hit recently, stole some of the show. Acting as a pinch hitter in the twelfth he singled, was sacrificed and scored on Frank Demaree's single to give the team's veterans all the laurel wreaths.

In the second game of the Bee-Giant twin bill, Manuel Salvo, a Giant cast-off, blanked his former mates with eight hits to win 6-0, and make Bill Terry acutely conscious that the trade he made for Tony Cuccinello, using Manny as bait, was not the best he ever made.

Meanwhile, the Brooklyn Dodgers had a chance to close the gap between themselves and the idle Cincinnati Reds, but they flubbed it. After winning the first game 6-5 as Freddie Fitzsimmons got credit for his 12th of the year, they lost the second 9-6 as Johnny Rizzo and Bob Bragan hit in timely fashion and the Brooks' pitching folded completely.

Yankees Win

The New York Yankees crept back into the first division by lambasting the Boston Red Sox for the third straight time, 8-3 as Red Ruffing held the opposition to six hits, three of them homers by Lou Pini, Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams.

The bombers hit no homers in winning their sixth straight, but they collected 11 blows off Earl Johnson and Denny Galehouse.

Detroit finally came out of its slump, after four losses, to hop on the St. Louis Browns 13-7 in a loosely played game that cost the Browns the services of Johnny Whitehead, who suffered a spiked ankle in a collision at first base.

Buddy Lewis' triple in the ninth with two out and two on gave the Washington Senators a 5-3 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics. Ken Chase limited the A's to seven hits while the Nats were punching Nelson Potter's deliveries for 11.

Pepper Martin, last of a long line of substitutes, worked Mace Brown for a walk in the eleventh inning with the bases loaded to force in the run that gave the St. Louis Cards a 7-6 night game victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Clyde Shoun, last of four Card pitchers, got credit for the victory in the game that saw 32 hits rattle the walls of Sportsman's park. The losers got 17 of the blows. Brown was charged with the loss, the Pirates' second in a row.

Rain caused postponement of the Cincinnati-Chicago C game.

Mr. Harris spoke in the absence of Coach Cahoon, who was detained in Milwaukee because of the serious condition of his son, Billy Cahoon, 11, who underwent an operation at a Milwaukee hospital.

The 32 entries, survivors of tournament jump in 45 states, will battle more than two weeks in a carnival-like atmosphere before spectators who like their baseball in generous doses.

The tournament is a double elimination—you've got to lose twice before you are out.

Thanks to Raymond Harry Dumont, semipro president, the fans will see, in addition to baseball, these added attractions: umpires in checkered coats, an automatic plate duster, and a disappearing microphone.

The "mike" is buried behind home plate and will pop up to relay to the most distant bleacherite just what an angry player says to an umpire.

The Duncan, Okla., cementers are defending champions. They won in 1930, too, and are rated serious contenders for the 1940 honors. Two other former champions—Enid, Okla., in 1937, and Buford, Ga., in 1938, also are in the field.

The winner here will sail early in September from New York for San Juan and the second semipro world series, won last year by the Puerto Ricans, four games to two.

The entries include: Chicago Palmer House; Racine (Wis.) Elks; and winner Indiana State tournament at Muncie.

a six hitter as the Yanks won third straight over Red Sox.

Dick Bartell, Tigers—Got three for four at the plate, drove in two runs and handled six chances as field as Detroit beat St. Louis, 13-7.

Al Smith, Indians—Superb one-hit performance shut out Chicago in American league's only night game.

Pepper Martin, Cards—Worked relief pitcher Mace Brown of the Pirates for a walk with the bases loaded in the 11th to give Cards 7-6 victory.

By The Associated Press

Carl Hubbell, Giants and Manny Salvo, Bees—Former hurled five hit shutout over Bees in first game and latter beat former mates with eight-hit nightcap job.

Fred Fitzsimmons, Dodgers and Johnny Rizzo, Phillies—Former won 12th of season in first game of doubleheader and latter pounded out three homers, two in the second game which Phils won.

Buddy Lewis, Senators—Tripled in ninth with two on to give Senators 5-3 win over A's.

Charley Ruffing, Yanks—Pitched

Chiefs Start Daily Training At Weyauwega

Inter-Squad Game to Be Staged Sunday at County Fair Grounds

Weyauwega—More than 40 members of the Milwaukee Chiefs, newest entry in the American Professional football league, held their first workout at their training camp in Weyauwega, Thursday morning.

Under the direction of Tiny Cahoon, head coach, former mentor at West DePere and West Green Bay high schools, and more recently of Monmouth college in Illinois.

First practice consisted primarily of ball handling and calisthenics, but contact work will come almost immediately as an inter-squad game is scheduled at the county fair grounds here, Sunday afternoon, August 18.

Coach Cahoon has little time in which to weed out his material, and he needs to discover as fast as possible the boys who can really go in pro football.

Uniforms were issued to the squad, Wednesday afternoon. The Chiefs are using the Weyauwega high school gymnasium for their training headquarters, together with the showers and equipment.

A training table is maintained at the Hotel Dobbins, and many of the boys stay at the local hotel, while others are quartered in private homes in the city.

Workouts will be held each morning from 8 o'clock to 11, and in the afternoon from 1 o'clock to 5. Skull sessions are scheduled each evening, with curfew being sounded at eleven o'clock, according to Coach Cahoon.

Members of the squad who were in Weyauwega, Tuesday evening were banquet guests of the local Lions club. About 75 were in attendance, including representatives from Appleton, Oshkosh, Berlin, Stevens Point, Waupaca, New London, and Milwaukee, George M. Harris, president of the Milwaukee Chiefs, was the principal speaker.

Introduced members of the squad who were present, and gave an interesting talk about the history of the game of football and the introduction of the sport in universities and among the professionals.

He was introduced by O. R. Wiesman, representing the Weyauwega Lions club.

Cahoon Absent

Mr. Harris spoke in the absence of Coach Cahoon, who was detained in Milwaukee because of the serious condition of his son, Billy Cahoon, 11, who underwent an operation at a Milwaukee hospital.

The boy was injured while playing football at his home the previous Friday. His condition was considered satisfactory yesterday morning, and Mr. Cahoon made the trip to Weyauwega to take charge of the training sessions.

Climax of the stay of the Milwaukee Chiefs here is a scheduled game with the Flying Dutchmen of Little Chute on Sunday, August 25.

Governor Heil will be present on that day, and elaborate preparations are being made, including selections by a massed band, the presence of mayors of many cities throughout the Fox River and Wisconsin River valleys, and other features.

Presidents of Lions clubs who were present at the dinner meeting Tuesday evening at Hotel Dobbins to hear Tiny Cahoon of the Milwaukee Chiefs were Franklin Jesse, Appleton; C. L. Booth, Waupaca; H. H. Helms, New London; Ralph Kennedy, Stevens Point; and George Dobbins, director Lions International.

Potsy Clark Returns To Post With Lions

Detroit (AP)—Forty-one Detroit Lions clumped and perspired before Coach Potsy Clark at the Cranbrook school field yesterday to open their 1940 training period of the National Professional football league and welcome Potsy "home."

Clark, who tutored the Lions in 1934, '35 and '36 before going east, was greeted by only four of his original roster here. They were Clarence Randolph, assistant coach; Johnny Johnson, playing line coach; Bill Shepherd, fullback, and Ray Morse, end.

Twenty-one rookies reported.

Wang, Duex plated on Ronovsky's grounder. Metzger fanned to become Van Cuyk's tenth victim and to snub the rally.

Appleton got two men on base in the seventh frame but Chell grounded to Duex who wheeled it to Metzger for a forecure. Metzger whipped it to Monahan for a twin killing. Fond du Lac forged into a 5 to 3 lead in the eighth when a grounder, hit by Duex, took a bad bounce over Malattia's head. Duex stole second and scooted for home on Foth's single, scoring as Chell dropped the ball.

Foth took second on the play and went to third on Monahan's dribbler. He scored on Ronovsky's grounder to Byrne.

Things Look Brighter

Things looked brighter for Appleton in the eighth. Wang, a catcher who is all baseball, speared Hoefken's high fly but Toranson came through with a long home run. Malewicz drew a walk. Wang made another nice catch of Byrne's high fly but Van Cuyk got a single, his first hit of the season, to send Malewicz to third. Malewicz played on Malattia's drive to center and Van Cuyk counted on Danicak's smash in the same spot. Working a double steal, Danicak headed for second but pulled up on the throw from the catcher. Malattia set sail for home and was safe at the plate. Wang being injured in the collision. Standaert fanned to end the scoring.

With the game in their back pockets, the Papermakers proceeded to both things up in what is fast becoming typical style. Hembrook reached first when Malattia let one go through his legs. Reynolds fanned but Hembrook advanced on a wild pitch. Hembrook took third on a hit by Rice and crossed the plate on a safely by Duex.

Rice and Duex brought in the tying and winning runs on Foth's winning runs on Foth's hit and Foth counted on Monahan's grounder.

It's never too late to win a ball game and Appleton started out to do just that in finale. Chell hit one that was too hot for Reynolds to handle and Hoefken followed with a single. Aaronson, running for Chell, took second and moved to third when Toranson drove a walk. Malewicz fanned and Byrne bounded one to Metzger who tagged Toranson and threw Byrne out at first.

America OUT-OF-DOORS

FRIENDS MADE IN OUT-OF-DOORS

Twilight was upon us by the time my wife and I got our tent pitched and things straightened around for our week's stay at a remote lake in the northwoods. Within shouting distance through the woods another family was tenting. They were from the same city, but we did not know them, for most city folks, unfortunately, don't get acquainted with their near neighbors.

I had just begun to rustle wood for a small cooking fire when our neighbors—man, woman, and 6-year-old daughter—paid us a visit. They were getting ready to eat supper and would we please come over and join them?

We would! Brook trout, done to a nice brown, were as good as sticks of candy. These were supplemented with delicious pieces of fried bass, and pancakes and syrup. Hot coffee was equally welcome, for the refreshing coolness of the night, which made a sweater desirable, was settling upon us. Soon we were calling each other by our first names.

Serves As Guide

"We've been here a week," said Ches, "and I've got pretty well acquainted with the lake. Want to go

$2,977,000 Is County Share For Defenses

Almost Half of Cost To Fall on Appleton; 125 Million in State

Federal rearmament expenditures of five billion dollars annually will cost Outagamie county taxpayers $2,977,000 a year, according to estimates made by Wisconsin Taxpayers' Alliance. This is more than the 1939 property tax levy in the county, which was $1,886,859. On the basis of the county's assessed valuation, almost half of the cost would be borne by the city of Appleton.

Computed share of national defense costs, and aggregate 1939 property tax levies, of nearby counties are as follows: Brown $3,226,000, $2,544,141; Calumet $832,300, $423,363; Waupaca $1,173,000, $935,511; Winnebago $3,187,500, $2,934,924.

The Alliance estimates of defense spending are based on 14 billion dollars allotted for defense, of which seven billion is appropriated for this year, but of which the government expects to spend only about five billion.

Rearmament expenditures will cost Wisconsin taxpayers about $125,000,000 a year, about $15,000,000 more than the total 1939 real estate and personal property tax levy, the Alliance stated. The state's share was based on Wisconsin's relative share of the national income, wealth, population and other factors, estimated at 21 per cent of the nation's total.

These estimates emphasize the necessity for local governments to reduce costs to partly offset the extra spending required by rearmament, the Alliance brought out.

It's Time for Hyphen Groups To Turn Away From Europe

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—A small dispatch from Buffalo tweaks an issue which at present gives no appreciable pain, but which should be examined and doctored in the interests of political hygiene.

In Buffalo the central committee of Polish organizations asked the city council to change the name of a thoroughfare known as Lindbergh drive, recommending that it be named, instead, for Adam Plewacki, the first resident of Buffalo killed in France in the first world war. Obviously, Adam Plewacki was a man of Polish birth or blood, and the suggestion that he be thus honored, coming as it does from a community of organizations which frankly profess to be Polish, is an unpleasant reflection on his loyalty to the United States, being tinged with an insinuation that he was American with reservations.

Would it be in bad taste, do you suppose, to remind this body that this is not Poland but the U.S.A. and that organizations which consider and call themselves Polish, Italian, German or Irish, Czech, Dutch or Norwegian forget their manners in presuming to address suggestions to the American government or any of its sub-divisions affecting our own affairs?

No Polish group has any standing here except as an alien group, and we have had some difficulty ere now convincing alien groups that we can attend to the naming of our streets, the election of congressmen, mayors and the like and the general management of the nation and its communities without outside assistance, however well meant.

The fact that American sympathies and detestations at present are generally identical with those of the Polish people does not simplify the case. The point is that when Poles become Americans they are supposed to cease to be Polish and that pressure as unassimilated minorities. It can be added that in many such cases able but discreditable politicians put themselves forward as spokesmen for the vote of this or that hyphen-American group and, by their sordid misdoing, including monkey business at the polling places and racketeering on public contracts, seriously injure the people for whom they presume to speak.

It may be admitted that some political leaders of such groups are fine citizens, but the fact persists that when they acquire power in American politics as representatives of colonies of foreign-born citizens they tend to set those people apart from the whole community and postpone their assimilation or Americanization.

Italians Placed In Embarrassing Position

As a result of this very practice many Americans of Italian birth or blood, whose political padrones kept them segregated in American cities, are now in painful embarrassment. For years it was thought possible to be wholly American but to retain a love for Italy, but suddenly Italy is found in partnership with the nation which in its national anthem proclaims a mission to rule the whole world and at present is engaged in a formidable attempt to realize that ambition.

Thus, plainly, Italy is allied with the nation against which the United States is now rearing, and the love of Italy comes into conflict with complete devotion to this country. The American-Americans are uneasy about this love.

There is no reason why a group of Americans, calling themselves Americans, should not propose that Lindbergh drive be renamed Spelvin speedway or Elm street, but no organization of Poles has any such right. Speaking strictly, the Germans of Buffalo would be no further out of line if they should ask the city council of Buffalo to name a street for Horst Wessel or Hitler or the Italians should ask similar recognition for the Duke of Italo Balbo. True, Adam Plewacki must have been an American. Greater proof of his Americanism he could not have given. But this organization, speaking as Poles, represents him as a Pole, which is no compliment to him.

This would be a good time for all such organizations to throw out their stationery, destroy their rubber stamps and, with one last look toward Europe, decide to become American with no reservations.

An expression of appreciation to the American People

Thirty-four years ago I perfected a method for making toasted Corn Flakes from fine white corn grown in the United States. Little did I realize the tremendous expansion which lay ahead.

The American people liked my Corn Flakes. Sales grew from a few packages a day until now, after a third of a century, hundreds of thousands of packages are sold each day. Ideal working conditions, security and means of livelihood have been provided for our employees and their families. The American farmer likewise has been benefited by our purchases of grains and other products.

Today as I note with satisfaction the ever increasing sales of Kellogg's (the original) Corn Flakes and our other cereals, I wish to express my sincere appreciation to the American people for their confidence in the products which bear my name. I also wish to thank the grocery industry for their splendid cooperation.

Kellogg products will continue to be made according to the high standards which have won for them this acceptance.

H.K. Kellogg

Farm Homes in State Studied By Officials

Federal Experts Eye Remodeling Results in Seven Dwellings

Washington —(AP)—A new yard-stick for comfort, economy and efficiency in farm housing has been established by federal researchers using representative-type houses on Wisconsin farms.

The program, conducted by the agricultural department's bureau of agricultural chemistry and engineering since 1935, covered seven houses from 25 to 75 years of age which had structural defects and were mostly in poor condition.

Cooperating farmers were selected among those who wished to improve their housing.

Comprehensive studies of the existing structures were made, remodeling plans were prepared, incorporating changes deemed necessary on the basis of the preliminary studies, and then construction work was carried on at the owner's expense under bureau supervision.

"The greatest source of annoyance and discomfort, most families agreed, was inability to properly heat the houses in winter," bureau experts reported. "This was apparently due to defects in the structure such as poorly fitting windows and doors, high heat loss through walls and ceilings due to lack of insulation and storm sash, and poor regulation of the heating system."

Large Heat Saver
In one house where the only improvement was complete insulation, walls and floors were warmer and air temperatures near the floor were increased appreciably, it was said.

All the cooperators reported they were comfortable in their improved houses, even in the most severe weather, and fuel savings ranged up to 50 per cent.

Poor kitchen arrangement and lack of equipment was found to be next in importance as a source of annoyance, and the homemakers were pleased with their remodeled kitchens and hot and cold running water.

Bureau experts said the experiment indicated that it was often cheaper to build a new house if it was necessary to alter radically existing foundations and exterior walls to obtain a satisfactory arrangement, or if extensive repairs were necessary.

"The project showed that the farm family can do much to reduce building costs," they said. "In all of the houses some of the work was done by the family itself."

"One reason many farmers who otherwise would improve their houses are not doing so is because they lack necessary information and guidance."

Army Worm Appears On Several Farms in Waupaca County Towns

Waupaca—On several farms in the towns of Waupaca and Scandinavia the army worm has made its appearance. In one field the lowland pasture has been completely stripped and the worms have headed for the cornfields. On another farm new seedlings were completely cut off and the worms were doing much damage to the oat kernels.

All grass crops including corn, timothy, millet, blue grass and small grains are attacked by the worm. The pest lives over in the partly grown larva stage. These partly grown worms shelter in the soil, grasses and under litter. Then they change into the moth stage. They lay eggs on the lower leaves.

of grasses in great numbers, as many as 500 or more and it is this stage of the insect which does the damage.
One of the most effective methods of eradication, according to County Agent Victor Quick, is to scatter a poison bran mixture in fields where they are feeding. A good bait for this purpose can be made as follows: 25 lbs bran, 3 gallons water, 2 quarts cheap molasses and one pound of Paris Green or White's arsenic.
